Fresh Tactics In Move To Forestall Threatened Strike

Rewriting of U.S. Code Considered in Efforts to Bring Agreement in Bituminous Coal Trade; Economic Index Moves Upward

By Sam Robertson, Canadian Press Staff Writer
New York, Sept. 13.—Moving quickly to forestall threatened strikes throughout the soft coal fields of United States, the National Recovery Administration adopted a new set of tactics to-day in its search for agreement on a bituminous coal code. Rewriting was in order. In the meantime, there were demands for rational inflation.

Cotton farmers and seed crushers of Tennessee called for "immediate expansion of the currency to in some degree restore the buying power of the farmer."

Chairman Pat Harrison, of the Senate Finance Committee, met Mr. Roosevelt in Washington and pressed for inflation, either through issuance of new money or lowering the gold content of the dollar. He pleaded the case of agrarians.

After the Roosevelt-Harrison meeting the Associated Press said there were indications some action might be taken soon in the direction of regulated inflation if prices, particularly those revived by the farmers, did not pick up.

Reporting the conference, the New York Times Washington correspondent said: "President Roosevelt is still opposed to a new set of tactics, but the policy until the recovery programme has been thoroughly tested."

There were 10,000 impatient miners voluntarily idle in Pennsylvania and others threatening to follow suit when bituminous operators and union leaders, under NRA guidance, named two committees of nine men each to consider methods of code administration and whole-hearted agreement on wage scales, working hours, etc.

Bright spots on the recovery map were a further expansion in building and increased department store sales. Value of August building permits in 215 cities was placed by Dun and Bradstreet at $32,422,968, against $27,666,790 a year ago. It was the third successive monthly improvement.

August sales by department stores struck an index of 75, compared with 71 in July and 68 in June.

There was a significant decision from the National Labor Board, a branch of NRA, that might allow the mounting controversy between capital and labor. Workers of the Berkeley Woolen Mill of West Virginia complained there was attempted coercion by the company. The Labor Board handed down this ruling:

"The respondents' refusal to deal with representatives of the employees, unless these representatives are workers in the mill, is an attempt to interfere with and restrain the employees in the designation of their representatives, and is a violation of the code which covers the industry, as well as a violation of the Industrial Recovery Act."

UPWARD INDEX
"Signs of a broad advance are everywhere," Gen. Hugh Johnson declared. "Every economic index has moved substantially upward since those dark days of March"—when Franklin Roosevelt took up the presidency.

He defended the Recovery Act against charges of "dictatorship" and interpreted the whole movement as an effort to bring capital and labor on a common plane of understanding.

The American paper industry, supplying sixty per cent of the world's consumption of paper, announced formulation of a code to be submitted to the NRA Thursday, under which an estimated increase of $70,000,000 a year in wages will be paid to employees.

The code will reduce the average hours of work a week to forty hours. It will restore the average weekly earnings to nearly the figures prevalent in the peak year of 1929. It will increase the number of employees from 107,000 to 135,000 on the present low rate of production.

Great Blue Eagle Parade In New York

Quarter of a Million Industrial People in March Up Fifth Avenue While 3,000,000 Look on

A related Press
New York, Sept. 13.—The Blue Eagle marshaled one of the greatest peace-time parades to-day, summoning a quarter of a million people in industry to march up Fifth Avenue in the "President's NRA Day" demonstration.

Moving, as NRA Chief Grover A. Whalen described it, from "the darkness of depression" toward the "sunlight of prosperity," the gigantic cavalcade started at 12:30 p.m. eastern standard time, and followed up the historic avenue.

INVALID WINS SWEEP PRIZE

G. A. Farmer, 1138 Johnson Street, Draws Horse in Army and Navy Lottery

Has Non-starter and Will Share in $27,000 Pool; Canadians Win Rich Sums

There is one happy man in Victoria to-day. He is G. A. Farmer, 1138 Johnson Street, veteran of the Great War and an invalid for the last thirteen years, who received word that he had drawn a horse in the Army and Navy Veterans' sweepstake on the St. Leger Stakes run to-day at Doncaster, England. Farmer held a ticket on Pillar of Fire, and although the horse was a non-starter he will receive a neat sum.

When informed by The Times of her husband's good fortune Mrs. Farmer was overcome and could only say: "Thanks very much."

According to the prize list of the sweepstake Farmer will share in a pool of $27,000 to be divided among the holders of non-starters.

Mr. Farmer, fifty-four, Montreal, held an Army and Navy Veterans' sweepstake ticket on Hypertion, winning horse, and will receive $54,000. A ticket on Peliculation, second horse, is held by A. Labelle, Quebec City, who receives $36,000. William A. Hasse, Calumet City, Ill., held a ticket on Scarlet Tiger, in third position. Hasse wins $18,000.

When he heard the good news to-day, Vanier promptly quit his job as a clerk in a shoe store. "I have worked since I was six years of age," said Vanier, "and have never earned more than $15 a week. Now I am going to take it easy."

He grabbed his hat, tossed a buttonhook on the counter, and dashed out of the store to celebrate.

R. A. Lakin, Nanaimo miner, was held by a horse named the Volcanus in Army and Navy sweepstake.

LITTLE CRIME IN HOLLYWOOD

Chief Blair Keeps Close Check in Wealthy Movie Town

Associated Press
Beverly Hills, Cal., Sept. 13.—This wealthy city, home of film stars, has had but one murder since it was incorporated in 1917 and but one major burglary this year, Chief of Police Charles G. Blair said to-day.

"I believe in policing a city closely," Blair said. "Then you prevent crime instead of having to hunt the criminal. We have one patrolman for every 300 citizens, whereas the average city this size has only half as many."

"Every citizen is given a card of suggestions which help prevent crime. Patrolmen check the homes of persons who have notified they will be away for a time as many as twelve times a day."

"Every peddler is fingerprinted and photographed when he applies for a permit."

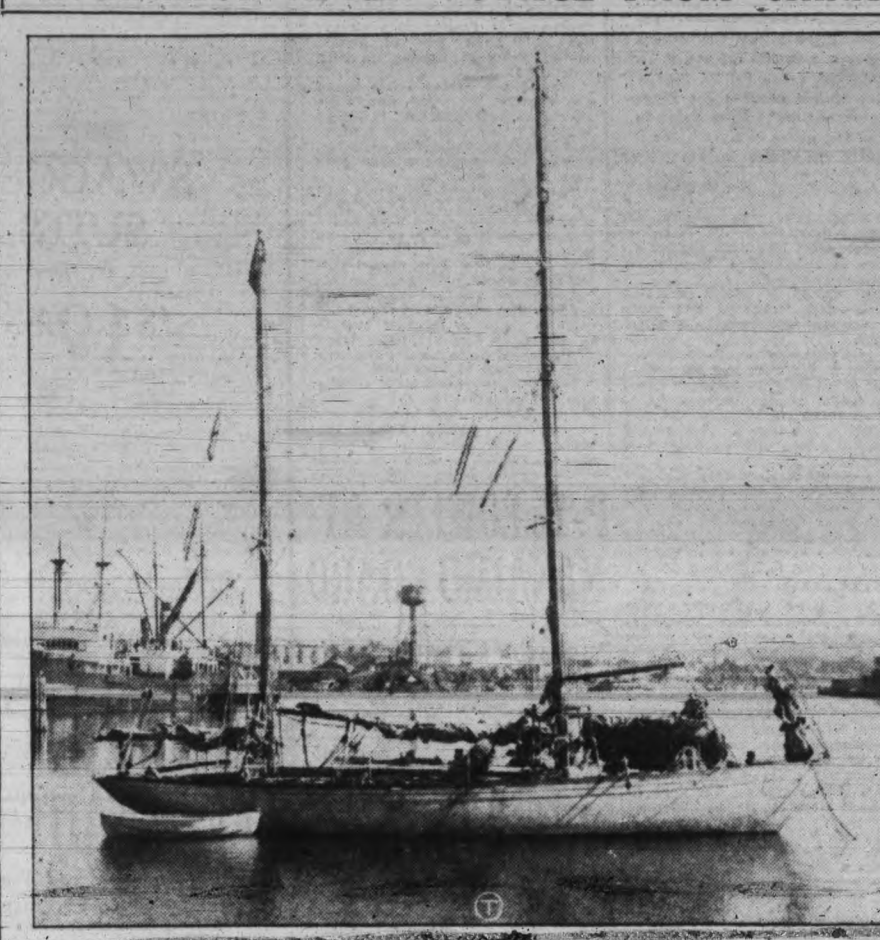

side in the ranks under the NRA banner as the shock troops of the industrial recovery forces gathered in seventy-one massed divisions.

Throng, granted a half-holiday, flocked to the scene to watch it. Advance estimates said the spectators numbered 3,000,000.

Washington, Sept. 13.—In the first attempt to apply the Recovery Act directly to an employer accused of violating the collective bargaining provision, the National Labor Board ruled to-day that the Berkeley Woolen Mills at Martinsburg, W.Va., had attempted coercion of its employees.

Washington, Sept. 13.—President Roosevelt was in the highest quarrel to-day in putting full federal backing behind United States banks and to expect them to push out credit in the recovery drive for higher prices and wages.

Growers And Shippers Are United In Stand For Orderly Marketing

B.C. Fruit Will Again Move to Market With Agreement Going Into Effect To-night

Canadian Press
Kelowna, B.C., Sept. 13.—Fruit growers of the Okanagan Valley, British Columbia's premier fruit producing area, were united to-day in a common stand for orderly marketing. At the same time shippers had all signed their intention of coming within the stabilization board.

These developments were hailed by W. E. Haskins, president of the B.C. Fruit Growers' Association, as indicating success of the "cent a pound or on the ground" crusade of the growers.

ONE GREAT POOL
The sole condition under which the last of the commercial shippers entered the fold was that growers shipping to them sign the growers' pledge, equivalent to a demand that shippers enter one great pool. Mr. Haskins declared there was little doubt this would be accomplished.

Commercial shippers and a few grower-shippers agreed to join the stabilization board last night. Mr. Haskins previously had set a twenty-four-hour time limit in which decision was to be reached, failure to enter the pool, he said, would mean the shippers still outside would get no fruit deliveries.

The new shipping code comes into effect to-night. Marketing of its operation, he said.

STABILIZATION BOARD
The stabilization board plan provides growers will ship fruit to packing houses with the assurance they will get at least a cent a pound. The board consists of the shippers, who have agreed to operate under a cartel arrangement whereby movement of fruit to domestic markets is controlled. No shippers are to get more fruit than it can absorb and no competitive shipments will be allowed.

Prices will be determined by a joint committee of growers and shippers.

"Unless we have 100 per cent our whole efforts are in vain," said Mr. Haskins in a final appeal yesterday for common action. "The alternative to stabilization with all the shippers backing behind United States banks and to expect them to push out credit in the recovery drive for higher prices and wages."

The announcement creates many complications, Hon. J. W. Jones now definitely decide whether he will remain loyal to his leader or desert to the majority of Conservatives now lined up in the new independent group. N. S. Loughheed, organizer of the Tolmie forces, finds all his plans to label virtually every candidate, other than a Liberal or a C.C.F., as a Unionist shot from under him. Mr. Loughheed is included in the repudiation.

Other members of the cabinet will have to choose whether they will stay with the Tolmie ship or take a chance on the Bowser-Bruhn boat.

As far as Hon. S. L. Howe and Hon. W. M. Dennis are concerned reports from Vancouver are to the effect that Mr. Loughheed has been unable to arrange conventions to nominate them on the mainland.

"New recruits to the Tolmie government evidently believe in a short life, and probably they don't care how sad it is," Vancouver Province.

VOTE FAVORS RAIL STRIKE

Men of Eastern Running Trades Would Reject Another Wage Cut

Canadian Press
Montreal, Sept. 13.—"Trainmen" conductors, telegraphers, engineers and firemen in Montreal and vicinity, now voting in the general strike referendum being conducted by the railroad running trades, have filed an overwhelming number of ballots in favor of a strike as an alternative to taking another wage cut."

The Montreal Star says. "It was discovered with the exception of the telegraphers the brotherhoods were casting their votes almost unanimously in favor of rejecting the cut. The telegraphers, it was found, are voting in the proportion of 65-35 for a strike. If negotiations with the companies cannot be successfully completed."

Entirely New System of Government Free From Party Is Given as Aim

Extravagance Blamed For Province's Plight

Elected Members Will Be Free to Vote as They Choose in House

Canadian Press
Vancouver, Sept. 13.—Independent candidates who will contest the provincial election, to-day completed preparation of a statement setting forth in general terms their attitude on some of the major issues of the campaign.

The statement follows: "Party politics and the rule of political machines, having brought government in British Columbia to its present intolerable state and the future welfare of the province into grave danger, those candidates for election who favor an entirely new system of government, freed of party altogether, announced in this statement of their aims."

"They do not form a party and do not seek election on a party basis. Each non-party candidate will be free to vote in the Legislature in accordance with his own best judgment, untrammelled by allegiance to any leader, party or caucus. Every non-party candidate will be pledged only to act and vote on all questions solely in the interests of honest, efficient and aggressive government."

"If these candidates form a majority in the next Legislature, they will meet together and choose a man whom they consider fitted for the post of Prime Minister and will recommend his appointment to the Lieutenant-Governor. But they will support the Prime Minister and the non-partisan cabinet which he forms only so long as they feel that the administration is giving good government, and only in such measures as they consider wise."

FREE OF PARTIES
"The non-party candidates have not had, nor do they propose to have, any dealings directly or indirectly, with any political party during the election campaign. This movement will stand or fall on its own merits, and will not seek aid of any kind from any political organization, and in all cases its candidates will be chosen by public conventions, open to all those who support its aspirations."

"While each non-party candidate will be free to advocate his own views on all public questions, he will endorse certain general lines of policy which, if successful at the polls, it will endeavor to inaugurate."

"It is recognized that the paramount problem before the provincial government is the cure of the economic depression of the province, the provision of employment for its people and the care of those in need. It realizes, however, that the larger measures of economic reform cannot, under the laws of Canada, be inaugurated by any provincial government, but must be introduced by the federal government. But, recognizing that the present economic system must be drastically overhauled to protect the great mass of the people and to safeguard the ownership of private property, the non-party candidates believe that many reforms to this end can and should be undertaken by the provincial government without delay."

UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE
We advocate, therefore, early adoption of a nation-wide system of contributory unemployment insurance, and will support its adoption in British Columbia. Meanwhile we favor the development of necessary public utilities to provide work for our unemployed citizens at wages sufficient to maintain an adequate standard of living."

"We believe that the solution of unemployment must be achieved by shorter working hours and the more equal distribution of work. So far as a provincial government can do so without exposing industry here to disastrous competition from other parts of Canada, we will work for the reduction of hours of labor. We will extend and enforce the male and female minimum wage acts, and set a minimum wage for boys to prevent the unjust exploitation of the working people, and to assure an increasing income for them as they grow older."

"We propose the establishment of a system of health insurance to insure adequate medical treatment, maternity benefits and hospital services for all of our people."

"We urge a fairer and more humanitarian administration of the old age pension and mothers' pension acts, so that no deserving person may be deprived of assistance through technical objections."

Repudiation Demonstrates Hostility to Leader and His Government

Immediate Rebuff Follows Dr. Tolmie's Plea For Harmony in Conservative Ranks

In uncompromising terms, Conservative and other candidates running as an independent group, made it clear yesterday that they are not in harmony with Premier Tolmie, his government or his political organization. If non-party members form a majority in the next B.C. Legislature, the man whom they recommend for Premier will under no circumstances be a member of the present government.

The group announced in a statement which was issued in Vancouver yesterday as a definite repudiation of the Premier and a cutting rebuff to the statement he issued the same day stating his government proposed to work in harmony with the new group which he said had reached the position he advocated a year ago.

As the government is not fighting the election, it was thus clear that, regardless of the result of the vote, the Premier would not remain at the head of the provincial administration, and that his ministry would end soon after the poll.

The Premier issued a statement on Monday night indicating that his government proposed to work in harmony with the independent non-party group, and declaring that the group had now reached the position which he had advocated a year ago. This was interpreted by the independent group as a last-minute effort to bring the government together with it. That manoeuvre was promptly stopped by the independent statement which announced that they would oppose the Premier and all his ministers in their own ridings.

The independent statement issued by their organization committee yesterday said:

"In a statement issued Monday night, Premier Tolmie indicated that his government proposed to work in harmony with the independent non-party group."

Canadian Defender of U.S. Amateur Golf Title Carried to Twenty-first Hole

Kenwood Country Club, Finn.
Sept. 13.—C. R. "Sandy" Somerville, defending champion of London, Ont., successfully advanced another step in defence of his United States amateur golfing crown to-day by defeating the veteran Chick Evans, Chicago, on the twenty-first hole of a close and exciting struggle in the first 18-hole round of match play.

Somerville won by one up after Johnny Goodman, United States open champion, was eliminated in the first round by H. Chandler Egan, Del Monte, Calif., a former champion, 2 up.

Somerville, lone Canadian left in the titular hunt, fought an uphill battle against the Chicagoan, who played spectacular golf despite the fact his mother lies at death's door in his home city. Sandy was two down at the end of the sixth but he won the seventh and ninth to start home on even terms.

MORE STATES FOR REPEAL

Maryland, Minnesota and Colorado Newest Recruits to Change Column

Washington, Sept. 13.—Twenty-nine states today marched the repeal path which only seven more need follow to end U.S. prohibition. Maryland, Minnesota and Colorado were the latest recruits. All voted yesterday to abolish the 18th Amendment and left the score in 1933's balloting: For repeal 29, against 0.

If the seven states, now needed to supply the three-quarters of the Union required for repeal, are among the ten voting before November 8, the repeal amendment will be ratified formally on December 6—the date of the 36th convention.

The vote carried Maryland overwhelmingly. Past mounting figures put the repeal majority at nearly five to one. The margins were smaller but substantial in Colorado and Minnesota. New Mexico, on Tuesday, Idaho and New York, on Wednesday, followed. Two weeks later, October 3, Virginia, Ohio and a week later, October 10, Florida. These four and the balloting until November 8 will complete the process. Maryland, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, South Carolina and Utah.

UNBROKEN LIST
The list of twenty-nine states which have voted to ratify the 21st or repeal amendment today read: Michigan, Wisconsin, Rhode Island, Wyoming, New Jersey, New York, Delaware, Nevada, Illinois, Indiana, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New Hampshire, West Virginia, California, Alabama, Arkansas, Tennessee, Oregon, Arizona, Missouri, Texas, Washington, Vermont, Maine, Maryland, Minnesota and Colorado.

Maryland also elected twenty-four delegates to the state convention to be held at Annapolis October 18 to vote solidly for the proposed 21st Amendment. Vote from 1,303 of the state's 1,371 precincts stood 197,595 in favor of repeal, 41,309 against repeal, and 3,505 uninstructed.

Minnesota repeal sentiment in yesterday's election reached its greatest crest in urban centres. Returns from 1,672 precincts of 3,666 in the state today gave: For repeal 267,037, against 23,766, and 3,504 uninstructed.

Commission Investigating Alleged Flogging of British Subject Bar Him From Reserves; Bamangwato's Gave No Trouble

Associated Press
Papapye, Bechuanaland, Africa, Sept. 13.—A special British commission investigating the alleged flogging of a British subject, P. W. Mackintosh, concluded its inquiry today with a decision the European be prohibited from living in any of the native reserves.

Flogging was alleged to have been the sentence of the native court of Chief Tsheteki, of the Bamangwato tribe.

The 15,000 natives who assembled for the inquiry heard the verdict in silence after their chief had been denied the right to call witnesses to establish Mackintosh's character.

The possibility of native resistance was considered, but some white men sent their families to places of safety.

The case centres about P. W. Mackintosh, who was said, was summoned to Tsheteki's court on charges of living with a native woman. He appeared at the court voluntarily, despite the lack of authority, and later said he desired to take no action against those who thrashed him.

Two hundred natives were sent here by special train. Their equipment included three howitzers. Colonel C. P. Hey, resident commissioner, was in charge of the investigation. The chief Tsheteki, who was educated in Europe, appeared in court in European dress.

P. B. FOWLER AT NANAMO BOARD

President of Trade Boards Speaks to Up-island Association

Special to The Times
Nanaimo, Sept. 13.—P. B. Fowler, president of the Associated Boards of Trade of Vancouver Island, was the guest speaker at the local trade board meeting yesterday evening.

Mr. Fowler appealed for co-operation of all island boards, saying there were many things which they could do. He stated it was forty years since he made his first speech, and that was in Nanaimo. He recalled that he had dealt with at the associated boards' convention and then gave a brief report on the progress of the trade board movement since that time.

Mr. Fowler said there were still difficult times ahead and many things to be accomplished.

Several committees were dealt with by the board. The Olympia and Seattle yacht clubs wrote, expressing appreciation of the hospitality during the regatta here, and stating that Nanaimo may have race next year if an invitation is issued.

The question of retaining the Department Bay area for recreation was discussed and referred to a committee. Customs officials notified the board that pleasure permits for yachts and power-boats of non-residents had been issued from October 1 until December.

A. Leighton was delegated to address the Combs fair officials on the Nanaimo farmer market.

Tokio, Sept. 13.—Shakespeare was appealed to across the centuries and the vast differences of Occidental and Oriental civilization yesterday to testify in behalf of ten young naval officers on trial for killing Premier Suoyoshi Inukai in May, 1932.

"The accused lieutenant had as his purpose the establishment of a better, purer state," the attorney maintained in his plea.

EVANS GUILTY JURY DECIDES

Vernon, Sept. 13.—Arthur H. Evans, charged under Section 88 of the Criminal Code with having advocated the use of force to obtain government, industrial and economic changes in Canada, was found guilty by a jury in the Mine Workers' Union at Princeton last fall, was found guilty by jury in the Asile Court here yesterday evening by Justice W. A. Macdonald reserved sentence.

The verdict was received in silence by a crowded courtroom. The trial lasted two days and attracted widespread attention. Members and sympathizers of the Canadian Labor Defence League and other labor organizations were present throughout the sessions.

Mr. Justice Macdonald granted almost every privilege asked by the accused and his counsel, Gordon Grant of Vancouver. Evans was permitted to defend himself, to examine witnesses and address the jury. In the opinion of the court he defended himself in a very able manner.

W. H. Bullock-Webster of Victoria, crown prosecutor, relied on evidence of four officers of the British Columbia police. Defence witnesses claimed that Evans had been sent for to act as a "work" organizer and not to make trouble or advocate the use of force for any form of change.

In his address to the jury Evans denied the charge, and declared that not a semblance of anything warranting his arrest took place at the meeting he conducted in Princeton.

The case was raised against me because I was wanted out of town by Constable Thompson and the coal mine owner so that the strike could be more easily broken," he stated.

Mr. Justice Macdonald told the jury it was not their concern whether Section 88 was a harsh law, but it was their duty to enforce it.

STUTTERERS MOSTLY SLIM

Slender Persons Comprise Majority of Stammering Class; "Asthenic" Type Most Prone, American Psychologists Told

Chicago, Sept. 13.—The majority of stutters are slender persons, members of that group of the population which psychologists call "asthenics." The studies to prove this were reported to the American Psychological Association today by Dr. Lee Edward Travis, director of the speech clinic of the University of Iowa.

He divided the country's population into three body build groups: the asthenics, athletic and pyknic. The last-named are thick-set. When the body shapes of stutters were studied he found that 75 per cent of them belonged to the asthenics, with some athletic builds mixed in.

Relatively very few stutters were of a mixed body type, he said. However, the asthenic shape predisposes an individual to stuttering, he said, is unknown.

"Asthenic individuals he described as 'characterized by deficiency in volume or thickness, without any corresponding increase in stature.' The underdevelopment of thickness is presented throughout the entire body. The skin is pale, chest flat, and there is very little fat."

FLIGHT PLANS ARE ALTERED

Montreal, Sept. 13.—Toronto and Montreal are now likely to be the scene of the start of James and Amy Mollison, world-famous British fliers, on their next transatlantic flight. E. D. Brimblecombe, secretary of the Montreal Light Airplane Club, stated he had received a letter from Mrs. Mollison indicating the change in plans.

While in Montreal some years ago Mrs. Mollison looked about for suitable spots from which to start a heavy fuel-laden plane on an attempt to better the world's long-distance flight record and said she was favorably impressed with a wide concrete highway in Ville St. Laurent.

In her letter to Mr. Brimblecombe, however, she said she had abandoned this idea and now expected the flight would start from Waasaga beach on the outskirts of Toronto.

Jim Mollison, the other partner in flying couple combination, is now on his way to Canada from England, bringing with him a 330 airplane for the exploit. Mrs. Mollison is expected to go to Quebec to meet her husband when he lands and the two will go to Toronto within the course of a week or two. The airplane will be shipped to Toronto and assembled in an aircraft plant there.

STRIFE TEARS U.S. INDUSTRY

Canadian Press
New York, Sept. 13.—Industrial strife tore several industries in Pennsylvania, New York and New Jersey today. Pennsylvania authorities viewed with apprehension preparations for a general bituminous mine "holiday." Ten thousand soft coal miners in five counties of southwestern Pennsylvania already have quit their jobs in protest against delay in signing an NRA code for coal.

The United States Labor Board was expected to make immediate efforts to settle strikes involving between 50,000 and 60,000 workers in the Pennsylvania silk industry. Public hearings on a code have been in progress.

Twenty thousand silk dyers still are on strike in New Jersey in a drive for a thirty-hour week and a minimum wage of 60 to 65 cents an hour.

Strikes in New York spread yesterday to 25,000 underwear workers in 200 shops, and 3,000 cleaners and dyers, union officials announced. Police prepared for new trouble in the Cape Cod cranberry areas as owners strive to harvest the crop that is valued at $3,000,000.

Three men were arrested in disorders that arose as 300 striking pickers drove around in trucks exhorting other pickers to leave the bogs.

President of Trade Boards Speaks to Up-island Association

Special to The Times
Nanaimo, Sept. 13.—P. B. Fowler, president of the Associated Boards of Trade of Vancouver Island, was the guest speaker at the local trade board meeting yesterday evening.

Mr. Fowler appealed for co-operation of all island boards, saying there were many things which they could do. He stated it was forty years since he made his first speech, and that was in Nanaimo. He recalled that he had dealt with at the associated boards' convention and then gave a brief report on the progress of the trade board movement since that time.

Mr. Fowler said there were still difficult times ahead and many things to be accomplished.

Several committees were dealt with by the board. The Olympia and Seattle yacht clubs wrote, expressing appreciation of the hospitality during the regatta here, and stating that Nanaimo may have race next year if an invitation is issued.

The question of retaining the Department Bay area for recreation was discussed and referred to a committee. Customs officials notified the board that pleasure permits for yachts and power-boats of non-residents had been issued from October 1 until December.

A. Leighton was delegated to address the Combs fair officials on the Nanaimo farmer market.

EVANS GUILTY JURY DECIDES

Vernon, Sept. 13.—Arthur H. Evans, charged under Section 88 of the Criminal Code with having advocated the use of force to obtain government, industrial and economic changes in Canada, was found guilty by a jury in the Mine Workers' Union at Princeton last fall, was found guilty by jury in the Asile Court here yesterday evening by Justice W. A. Macdonald reserved sentence.

The verdict was received in silence by a crowded courtroom. The trial lasted two days and attracted widespread attention. Members and sympathizers of the Canadian Labor Defence League and other labor organizations were present throughout the sessions.

Mr. Justice Macdonald granted almost every privilege asked by the accused and his counsel, Gordon Grant of Vancouver. Evans was permitted to defend himself, to examine witnesses and address the jury. In the opinion of the court he defended himself in a very able manner.

W. H. Bullock-Webster of Victoria, crown prosecutor, relied on evidence of four officers of the British Columbia police. Defence witnesses claimed that Evans had been sent for to act as a "work" organizer and not to make trouble or advocate the use of force for any form of change.

In his address to the jury Evans denied the charge, and declared that not a semblance of anything warranting his arrest took place at the meeting he conducted in Princeton.

The case was raised against me because I was wanted out of town by Constable Thompson and the coal mine owner so that the strike could be more easily broken," he stated.

Mr. Justice Macdonald told the jury it was not their concern whether Section 88 was a harsh law, but it was their duty to enforce it.

STUTTERERS MOSTLY SLIM

Slender Persons Comprise Majority of Stammering Class; "Asthenic" Type Most Prone, American Psychologists Told

Chicago, Sept. 13.—The majority of stutters are slender persons, members of that group of the population which psychologists call "asthenics." The studies to prove this were reported to the American Psychological Association today by Dr. Lee Edward Travis, director of the speech clinic of the University of Iowa.

He divided the country's population into three body build groups: the asthenics, athletic and pyknic. The last-named are thick-set. When the body shapes of stutters were studied he found that 75 per cent of them belonged to the asthenics, with some athletic builds mixed in.

Relatively very few stutters were of a mixed body type, he said. However, the asthenic shape predisposes an individual to stuttering, he said, is unknown.

"Asthenic individuals he described as 'characterized by deficiency in volume or thickness, without any corresponding increase in stature.' The underdevelopment of thickness is presented throughout the entire body. The skin is pale, chest flat, and there is very little fat."

FLIGHT PLANS ARE ALTERED

Montreal, Sept. 13.—Toronto and Montreal are now likely to be the scene of the start of James and Amy Mollison, world-famous British fliers, on their next transatlantic flight. E. D. While in Montreal some years ago Mrs. Mollison looked about for suitable spots from which to start a heavy fuel-laden plane on an attempt to better the world's long-distance flight record and said she was favorably impressed with a wide concrete highway in Ville St. Laurent.

In her letter to Mr. Brimblecombe, however, she said she had abandoned this idea and now expected the flight would start from Waasaga beach on the outskirts of Toronto.

NOVA SCOTIA APPLE TRADE

Steady Development of Annapolis Orchard Industry Since 1849

Canadian Press
Kentville, N.S., Sept. 13.—Establishment of markets is an interesting aspect in the history of the Annapolis Valley apple industry in Nova Scotia.

Until 1860, few settlers realized the fruit potentialities of the valley region. Although the Acadians, until their deportation in 1755, grew apples extensively, the varieties were of the "home orchard" class and meant for the manufacture of cider rather than for developing export trade. That was left in the hands of the British successors to this district.

The new owners lost no time. Commercial varieties brought out from England were grafted on to the "home orchards" and the growth continued, stage by stage, until in 1849, the valley thrived with excitement. Apples were to be shipped from Nova Scotia for the first time. Ambrose Bent, Halifax, and Benjamin Weir, Paradise, sent 200 barrels each to Liverpool, England.

A commission firm sold the fruit for $2 a barrel. This price, with "overhead" practically all as compared with the same expenditures to-day, was highly satisfactory and encouraged further ventures. Boston was tapped in 1856 at a price of $2.75 per barrel. That city, as well as California, Tennessee, Indiana and Florida, continued to be remunerative markets for Nova Scotia apples until recent years, when heavy tariff barriers were imposed and the industry increased within the United States.

In 1861, four Annapolis business men decided to try London. Their enterprise resulted in the first direct shipment from Annapolis to the English metropolis, and, apparently, the first failure, as the apples arrived in poor condition and many barrels were lost. In those days refrigeration at sea was provided by a partial cargo of green lumber in a frozen condition.

Shipments continued, however, and in 1881 the steamer made its debut in the apple trade when the Neptune carried 6,000 barrels direct to London from Annapolis, making the trip in fourteen days. Sailing vessels required three weeks for the passage.

By 1900 the export trade had reached 800,000 barrels annually, and its growth from that date was steady.

FREELAND, P.E.I. HAS ITS HISTORY

Canadian Press
Charlottetown, Sept. 13.—There is a bit of interesting history behind the name of Prince Edward Island, known as Foxley River, Freeland, the place is called now, but it was not always "free land."

In the days before Confederation, many huge tracts of land on the island were privately owned. Persons of military and civil influence had been granted lands by the crown, and they held domain over the tenantry in a modified feudal system.

The Foxley River territory was granted originally to Sir Henry Edward Walsh, of Garryloch, Ireland. But he made little effort to develop the land, and when the government insisted on this being done, he sent over a young man, James Warburton, to supervise the work of settlement.

On the death of Sir Henry, a large acreage was left to Warburton, by now the Hon. James Warburton. He assumed a leading part in island affairs, and when the first administration under responsible government was formed, he became provincial secretary-treasurer. Warburton had conducted his election on a promise of free land for his tenants. Elected to office, he immediately fulfilled his promise, releasing to his tenants the land they tilled. He was the first landowner on Prince Edward Island to take this step—hence the name, Freeland.

PERMANENCY, BORAH'S IDEA

U.S. Senator Comments on Silver Remonetizing Programme

Canadian Press
Spokane, Wash., Sept. 12.—The hope that any action the United States Congress might take this fall to remonetize silver would develop into a permanent instead of an emergency programme was expressed here by Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho.

The Senator's comment was made in an interview when asked to express an opinion on a prediction of Senator Key Pittman of Nevada that Congress will take steps to remonetize silver within three days after it reconvenes this fall. "I hope we will be able to work out some programme for the permanent restoration of silver," Senator Borah asserted. "We cannot always go on voting bonds, expecting the people to pay the interest on these bonds."

"The prediction of Senator Pittman that the government will be coming silver within thirty days after Congress convenes is exceedingly important," the Senator said.

"Under present conditions it would be perfectly safe to issue, to me, to restore silver to its proper place in the monetary world. Some day the conclusion will be reached," Mr. Borah continued, "that what is needed in our present dilemma is more money and less bonds and interest."

"Sixty billion dollars of our deposits, credit and currency have shrunk in the last four years to about forty billions," Mr. Borah said. "Under the circumstances, we must consider putting more money into circulation."

MALES MUST FIGHT FIRES

Refusal to Do So Means Prison Term in New Brunswick

Canadian Press
Fredericton, N.B., Sept. 13.—New Brunswick, with all its major forest fires extinguished, now is in the midst of a campaign to round up men who refused to battle the flames. Five men in Campbellton district and another in Bathurst had been convicted of refusing to aid in subduing fires, while a number of other prosecutions are pending in various districts where forest fires proved a menace all summer.

Consistent with this campaign is another by police to mitigate the danger of fires by strictly enforcing the law against camp fires in restricted areas. Prosecutions also have been made on these grounds and fines levied.

Two magistrates supported forest rangers in their complaints and condemned men who declined to aid in fighting fires. Magistrate John LeMarquand of Bathurst was particularly severe. He gave Edmund Arsenault of East Bathurst an option of paying $50 and costs or thirty days in prison. The accused is in jail. Five others were fined $15 and costs with alternative of fifteen days' imprisonment, by Magistrate Albert Andrew of Campbellton. They also went to jail.

Will Age Wine Quickly, Cheaply

By Howard W. Blakeslee, Associated Press Science Editor

Chicago, Sept. 13.—Chemistry today announced a substitute for the cobwebs of time which cut three years off the period now required to age good wine.

The flavor of apple juice, maleic acid, does it, cheaply, completely, and with nature's own smooth processes according to Dr. R. C. Downs of New York in a report to the American Chemical Society.

He said the ageing time can be cut so much the cost of wine making will be greatly reduced. The process arises from some surprising results described by Dr. Downs that come from passing a current of air over benzene and naphthalene.

The result is maleic acid, chemical curiosity prior to discovery of this method of synthesis. From maleic acid so made have come a small host of new chemical possibilities, including the quick ageing of wine.

Wireless Used For Treatment of Ailments, German Scientist Claims

Associated Press
London, Sept. 13.—Cures for various ailments by the use of short wireless waves were claimed to-day by Dr. Erwin Schliephake, a German physician and scientist.

Writing in the British Medical Journal, he described how after long study and experimentation he succeeded in treating deep-seated abscesses in the human body by passing ultra-short wireless waves through the patient, who was not in immediate contact with any instrument.

Dr. Schliephake declared he has used waves to treat pulmonary abscesses, after pneumonia, in pleural empyema, pneumonic tuberculosis, in certain forms of peritonitis, in migraine and acute tonsillitis.

CIVIL SERVANTS LOSING RIGHTS

Have Lost More in Eighteen Months Than Gained in Decade, Is Claim

Canadian Press
Windsor, Ont., Sept. 12.—"In the last eighteen months the civil servants of this country have lost more rights and privileges than ever they gained in the preceding ten or fifteen years," declared Harold Baker, Vancouver, national president of the Amalgamated Civil Servants of Canada, at the opening meeting of government employees Monday evening.

Ed. McGrath, New Westminster, vice-president and Fred Knowles, Ottawa, national secretary-treasurer, joined the president in urging need of organization in various departments and then amalgamation into a united front to defend their rights.

Mr. McGrath referred to recent recommendation of Montreal Board of Trade for a further 15 per cent reduction from the pay of civil servants, at the same time they objected to a 2 per cent tax on dividends.

"The Minister of Finance proposed the tax on dividends," he said, "but the government dropped the measure when protest was heard from financial interests." Another matter demanding close attention, he said, is the "attempted removal, by some members of the government of civil servants from the jurisdiction of the civil service commission."

"If we are to get back our 10 per cent deduction; if we are to get back our right of fair promotion; if we are to have the Superannuation Act amended, and if we are to uphold the merit system, the quickest way is for all federal employees to amalgamate," he declared. "I am not talking 'red.' One organization of civil servants can put up more effective front than several can in weeks of debate."

President Baker declared it was "a disgrace of a situation that civil servants are so poorly organized, there are forty-three separate organizations representing only 35 per cent of all federal employees."

Vancouver Takes Up Question of Children's Rates With B.C.E.R.

Canadian Press
Vancouver, Sept. 13.—A joint committee of city council and school board representatives, headed by Mayor L. D. Taylor, will appeal to W. G. Martin, president of the B.C. Electric Railway, to reinstate the 10-for-25 cents fare for school children in Vancouver.

The special committee of the council which deals with B.C.E.R. matters, will compose the council members of the delegation. At the same time as the delegation takes up the question of school children's fares, the civil utilities committee, also supported by the mayor, will ask for reduced gas rates. The need for keeping down price of children's car fares was greater this year than last. Mrs. Paul Smith, chairman of the Vancouver school board, told a meeting of school board and city council representatives, the street railway company, in a letter to the board, offered to sell to the board tickets at the 10-for-25 rate up to a maximum of 50,000 monthly for indigent pupils. The existing rate is eight for 25 cents.

WASTE GAS TO BE CONTROLLED

BOUNTY PLAN FOR WHEAT

Scheme Considered to Aid Export of Grain From Northwest States

Associated Press
Portland, Ore., Sept. 13.—Assurance that shipments of 40,000,000 bushels of wheat, the exportable surplus stored or now being harvested in the Pacific Northwest, would be made to foreign markets under a bounty arrangement, is contained in a plan received here by members of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration Board.

Details of the plan were withheld by Douglas McIntyre, chairman of the board sent here from Washington, D.C. to conduct a hearing on evolving of a plan early in August, when shippers, grain growers, millers and exporters drafted an arrangement that is closely followed, McIntyre said, in the new plan received here.

THE GOVERNMENT AND INDEPENDENTS

The political plot thickens. Premier Tolmie's gesture to the independent candidates in his public statement, claiming common ground with them in governmental aspirations, has met with a sharp rebuff in the form of a declaration which repudiates the government and everybody in it. That declaration, issued yesterday by the organization committee of the independent group says, "we wish to make it clear that this group has no dealings directly or indirectly with Premier Tolmie, his government or his political organization," that under no circumstances will any member of the government be chosen leader by the group, and that candidates will be nominated in all ridings, who will oppose the Premier and every member of his ministry.

There is thus no place in the independent picture for the government, or its organization, which had been fondly cherishing the idea that the candidates running under this particular designation could be regarded as its potential supporters. The child refuses to be adopted by the present administration. It will not choose its political foster-parents until after the election, but is determined that even then it positively will not select anybody who is connected with the government. It does not know whose child it will be. It only knows whose child it will not be.

That the independent candidates have grouped together and are talking about their future leadership is interesting and significant. Although they formally designate themselves non-party candidates, the fact that they have got together, formed an organization and hope eventually to have a leader, means that they have become a political party. The meeting in which they drew up a statement repudiating association with the government was nothing less than a caucus. If they were able to carry the election they would form a government. Hence, the candidates who had themselves nominated in opposition to party government have emerged from the political melting-pot as party candidates.

There is nothing new or phenomenal in this development. It is, in fact, as old as the parable of the scribes and Pharisees. The independents have been a party because they want to get into office. They want to be in the government. They want to be in the government because they want to remove any impression from the mind of the electorate that they might be associated with such a wicked thing, an impression which they believe would impair their chances of election. Some of them helped to put that government in office, helped to keep it in office, stuck to it through thick and thin until their legislative indemnities ran out and the patronage booty was exhausted, and now, with an election in sight and realizing that the government is thoroughly unpopular, presto, they discover that they are independent of all parties except the independent party, which means that they are not independent at all.

It is not because of any consideration of public interest that the independents have refrained from choosing a leader. It is because they dare not risk party solidarity by choosing one of the several aspirants for that post who have joined their ranks. No real simon-pure independent can properly be a member of the independent group, for his association with that caucus deprives him of his independence.

There may be one or two candidates who are not allied to some party or other, but that is all. For the most part, the aspirants to the House who have announced their candidatures belong to one of the eight parties now represented in the campaign. Of these eight parties the Liberals alone have candidates in almost every seat, and can assure a stable administration.

STABILIZING WHEAT

The international wheat agreement recently reached at London may eventually turn out to be one of the most important moves in the complicated game that is being played to bring the farmer back to prosperity.

Behind the agricultural depression there has stood the simple fact that the world as a whole is able to raise a good deal more wheat than can profitably be sold. And because the wheat-growing areas are so widely separated and so diverse, it has not been possible for any one nation, acting alone, to do anything very effective about it.

The new agreement is designed to stabilize world production at a point which will give growers everywhere a decent profit. If it can help to assure that for the farmer, we shall have taken a long step on the road back to good times.

BOBBING UP

From government circles comes the announcement that the Premier is contemplating cabinet changes and will proceed with the Ladner Bridge project and the establishment of a steel industry. Whether cabinet changes mean retirements or additions we are not informed, but we recall that after many similar announcements during the last year the only new appointment was that of Mr. Dennis as Minister of Labor—and very few people in the province knew who or what the new minister was before he was sworn in.

As for the Ladner Bridge project, our readers are aware that it is under fire from many quarters as an imprudent and unnecessary thing, particularly at this time when the government is operating under a succession of deficits, has a formidable unemployment problem on its hands and has to resort to nuisance taxation to get money. As for the establishment of a steel industry, the proposal is as old as the hills. It generally crops up about election time.

WHO IS YOUR LEADER?

The electors should require all independents to say whom they desire to form a government, for a Prime Minister—the man who heads the ministry of the province's business—is the most important factor in our administration. They are thus entitled to know whom those candidates have in mind to direct an institution for which they pay heavily in taxation and which therefore affects the welfare of every citizen. Any proposal that the elector should give any candidate the privilege of exercising his own sweet will in deciding whom he will favor for so vital a post as that of Prime Minister—after the election—is nothing short of an independent affront to the public. It implies that in the opinion of the candidates, who make it, the question of provincial leadership, with all that it involves for the public, is none of that public's business. Every candidate should have to show where he stands in this respect before the election.

STILL A PARTY GOVERNMENT

Mr. Savage, the new provincial Minister of Public Works, says he favors a government free from political party control and influence, based on the constitutional lines of government in Great Britain. It is not quite clear what Mr. Savage means. There are 615 members in the British House of Commons and the government has labelled itself Nationalist. But of the 615 members there are no fewer than 469 Conservatives—straight Conservatives, not Conservatives sailing under any new-fangled banner. Then there are thirty-five National Liberals and thirteen National Laborites. So that of a total of 615 members—the figures are the official figures issued after the 1931 election—there are exactly forty-eight whom we presume Mr. Savage would consider "free from political party control."

We shall be told perhaps that the Prime Minister of Great Britain is a representative of Labor. On the other hand it is fairly safe to say that more than 400 Conservatives are wondering what they can do about Mr. Ramsay MacDonald. For the time being he may be "free from political party control." But it is obvious he is being merely tolerated by the parliamentary members of the Conservative party.

The present government of Great Britain is as Conservative as the government Mr. Baldwin formed after the election in 1924; as Conservative as the governments of Salisbury, Balfour and Bonar Law. The National Union of Conservative and Unionist Associations is still the power behind the scenes.

TWENTY-NINE TO NOTHING

It is becoming increasingly obvious that our neighbors on the south are determined to tear the Eighteenth Amendment out of their constitution. Twenty-nine of the forty-eight states have voted for the Twenty-First Amendment, which would be the death of the Eighteenth Amendment, of prohibition. Amendment. Not a single state so far has voted to continue the semi-arid condition which has existed for more than a decade. When seven more states have followed the example of the twenty-nine the necessary legislative formality will follow.

In some quarters in Canada it is being suggested that when the citizens of the United States are able to buy in their own country liquid refreshment which is considerably more potent than the malt beverage now on sale, revenue from American tourists will fall off very considerably. The argument is a doubtful one. People from the neighboring republic are not specially allured to this country by the contents of government liquor stores. True, they patronize them, but our scenic and other attractions have a great deal more appeal for them. And it may be that the government at Washington will not derive as much revenue as it expects to derive from the country's return to something approaching the old order of things.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

AGRICULTURAL DISTRESS IN P.Q.
 The L'Illustration, Montreal

People complain that the Province of Quebec has barely begun to experience the improvement in business, and that the agricultural situation remains precarious and discouraging; but the blame for this cannot be placed on the federal government, which has been ready all along to co-operate with the province, as it has with the others. If our agricultural activity is not what it used to be; if we no longer produce more than 40 per cent of our consumption, if poverty reigns in our rural districts, the fault is imputable to the Tachereau Government, which has done practically nothing to put agriculture on its feet again and to open new lands for the youth of our farms. Ever since the beginning of the crisis, the provincial government has been content to distribute direct relief and to inaugurate public works. And for every $20 it gives to the roads, it can only spare one for the colonists and farmers.

ANOTHER MONOPOLY?
 The Le Devoir, Montreal

(The suggestion, seriously made in a Montreal newspaper, that taxicabs should be limited in number to maintain their prices at a rate prohibitive to the poor, is a manoeuvre of the Tramways monopoly.) In a few years all the private bus companies were driven off the streets, and the Tramways now have the monopoly of bus transportation in the City of Montreal and neighborhood. This same company, one can be quite sure, is now leaning at transportation by taxi, just as one day in the near future it will probably reach out for underground and aerial transportation. So much so that every means of transport for the ordinary traveler, except by steam railway, on land, beneath it and in the air, will be in the tentacles of the octopus. It is none too soon to alarm the public, which can look to no one else for its protection. It will be bamboozled, in order to make it swallow the pill, into believing that it will enjoy an improved service, even if it must pay a little more for it, and that the lives of its members, which are at present gravely imperilled, will be guaranteed a full security. We should burst this bladder immediately. The rulers at the city hall have favors to give to the "Trust's" vehicles, and the danger experienced by the public is not so much the result of the antiquity and decrepitude of the taxis as the lack of observance of city by-laws.

A THOUGHT

Loose Ends

Mr. Bennett is filled with doubts on a large subject—and no wonder—but, after all, we're all in the same boat—which is pretty leaky—still, never mind, for there is more serious trouble next door—where seven are missed.

By H.B.W.

ON TRIAL

DEMOCRACY, said Premier Bennett in a recent profound address to a gathering of young Conservative intellectuals, is on trial. And he admitted that he was a little appalled when he thought of the great issues of these times hanging on the vote of so many untrained and ignorant voters. At this I am, not in the least surprised. All politicians begin to distrust democracy after their party shows dangerous signs of slipping. I never knew a politician yet who wasn't willing to throw democracy completely overboard on the day after the poll, if he was defeated; nor any newly-elected candidate who wasn't satisfied that the good old public, after all, knew what it was doing.

As a matter of fact, I doubt that the one politician in ten who has been in office for a while believes in democracy. He pays the customary lip service to it, just as we all do to Christianity, without doing anything else about it. But down in his heart he knows perfectly well that the great mass of the questions before the country, the other day I met a completely happy politician. Needless to say, he had just given up politics forever and decided not to run again; and what he said sums up the attitude of politicians towards their great master, the public: "Thank God," he said, "I'm out of it. Now I can walk down Government Street and I won't be stopped and talked to every idiot who wants to talk to me about the depression or getting his brother-in-law a janitor's job. I'll be able to look the electors right in the eye and call them what they are!"

OUR NEIGHBORS

PROBABLY most of us think the same thing, that while we may be good fellows and sober citizens ourselves, our neighbors aren't really capable of self-government. Probably we support some scheme by which the vote would be confined to those educated sufficiently to know what it is all about, knowing full well that a large part of those who use it now, have no notion at all. But the trouble is that once you take the vote away from a certain class because it is ignorant, that class loses many other things besides. Once it loses the right to vote, however intelligently, it will no longer be long before those too ignorant to vote wouldn't be given free schooling to make them educated enough to vote. Pretty soon they would form a separate and inferior caste. They would become the untouchables of the nation, very much like the Communists and Jews in Germany, who have practically no rights at all.

And there would be nothing to prevent the minority on top gradually increasing the qualifications for voting, or changing them around to suit themselves, until after a while only the supporters of the Tolmie Government or the Patriote Government or the Mystic Knights of the Sea could vote. Once you tamper with general suffrage you are starting something which may have unpleasant results. Once you decide that your neighbor should have his vote taken away from him, you can never be sure that someone else won't decide that yours should be taken away from you. Most likely it should, but you don't think so.

PRICELESS BOON

THE REAL fact, of course, is that none of us is intelligent enough to vote on the present problems besetting our civilization; not even Mr. Bennett. There is nothing to indicate either that the masses of democracy are more capable of handling the things either. The only difference is that they don't allow the people to talk about it, whereas here any two fools on a street corner can tear the government to pieces and make and un-make empires, a priceless boon which should compensate them for the depression. And this right, unlike the franchise, is exercised by practically a hundred per cent of the population, including the writer of these words. It is a privilege we should not give up without a struggle.

And this right, unlike the franchise, is exercised by practically a hundred per cent of the population, including the writer of these words. It is a privilege we should not give up without a struggle.

Meanwhile the great question hanging over our civilization like a dark cloud is whether our education and intelligence can be increased rapidly enough to catch up with the increasing complexity of our problems and our uncanny skill in inventing new ones. At the moment it is slipping behind us, and has been for a quarter of a century at least, with results which can only be fatal to democracy and possibly to civilization itself. We shall have to hurry if we are going to avoid considerable trouble and inconvenience. A good start would be to tell our children the truth about things in school instead of cramming them with a quaint array of economic and racial and political legends, no more authentic and much more harmful, than the story of Little Red Riding Hood.

STRIKE

AS I had intended one small paragraph on the above, and it has grown and swelled to monstrous size and bestial shape. Let us turn from contemplating such horrid things to the strike next door. I am not just sure what started the strike. As nearly as I can make out, the lady next door jar of red candies on the table and her daughter, in a moment of weakness, extracted therefrom an indeterminate number of red candies. She is allowed only one a day, but the flesh is weak.

The discovery of the gaping hole in the red candies led to intensive investigations. Accused, the police court reporter says, denied all knowledge of the crime and advanced as an alibi that she was playing with her dog, Mickey, down the road all afternoon. But her young brother turned king's evidence and testified that his sister had taken seven.

"Seven candies, seven candies," he repeated solemnly. This the accused stoutly denied, asserting that she knew nothing of the matter and it was certainly not more than five. And she told me later that her brother's testimony was in violation of all the laws of evidence because seven was the only number he knew.

JUSTICE

WITH STERN justice it was decided the next day that, as she had taken seven candies at once, the little girl should not have a single candy on any day for a week; while the virtuous Crown witness, her brother, was given two. This caused the strike. The little girl announced in a voice loud enough to be heard all over town that she was going right straight away and she was going right straight away and never coming back. She was going to the very end of "the plain road," and, more, she was going to cross the main road, an unheard-of and shocking threat. And she set off.

But the strike was interrupted from the start. She had to watch the new baby being bathed at Mrs. Boggs. She had to inspect George Pudbury's new calf and rub noses with it, and then engage in that charming game, the details of which I spare you. Then she had to help Mr. Pudbury gather his corn by sitting on top of the load. And there were apples to be picked in Mr. Pudbury's orchard. And, of course, it was necessary to tell Mrs. Glumby and all the other neighbors about the periphery of her brother and how she was going away and would never come back again, not ever, and her mother would be sorry when she found her run over on the main road, and probably would cry then, but it would be too late.

By the time she reached the main road, indeed, she met her father coming home in his car and stopped to say a last farewell. This was fatal to the strike, for in the car she spotted a carton of pink ice cream for dinner, just beginning to ooze deliciously through the cracks. The strike instantly collapsed. She rode home with her father and told me in confidence that one could run away any time, but ice cream only came once in a while.

"But it was only five," she insisted.

"Seven," said her conscientious brother.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

THE CREST

Never let this moment go.
 Only to catch and hold it so!
 Bitter are they who look always back
 For by their sense of the present's lack
 They miss the one and only chance
 To live and love and make the most of it.

Barren are they who must look ahead.
 Dreaming far dreams like the wind
 No right coin in their hands to hold,
 Only the hope of a tomorrow's gold.

Neither bitter nor barren
 Ridding the crest of the wave, tossed high;
 Proud in the finding of utter bliss
 Winning with nature life's smile, life's kiss!

Never let this moment go!
 Only to clutch it and keep it so!

CARIBOO GOLD IS PLENTIFUL

Precious Metal Will Bring Prosperity to Province, Says John Hosie

The discovery of vast quantities of gold in the Cariboo district recently will again lead the way to prosperity for British Columbia, according to John Hosie, provincial librarian and archivist, who yesterday evening addressed the first fall meeting of the Burns Club in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium, attended by more than 200 members and friends.

Mr. Hosie referred to recent discoveries in the Cariboo, where, he said, the miners were optimistic over their finds and were obtaining more than satisfactory returns. In the last three years, continued the speaker, hundreds of miners have staked ground in the Barkerville area and have been well rewarded for their efforts. He warned, however, that gold mining was necessarily a "rich man's game" as it required considerable investment to sink shafts to bedrock to get to the deposits. There was little loose gold to be found in the creek beds, he stated.

Present gold prospects were reviewed by the speaker as he took his audience on an imaginary journey through the Fraser Valley by way of Yale, Lytton, Pavilion Mountain, Clinton, Williams Lake, thence to Quesnel and Barkerville.

The meeting was opened with the playing of the bagpipes by Pipe-Major Donald Cameron and the entertainment provided by Mrs. W. A. Jamieson, vocalist; Anton Scherakowski, violinist; Miss Kathleen Scherakowski, pianist; and Miss Gwen Dewar, Highland dancer. Fifteen new members were welcomed during the evening.

NEW TORONTO POLICE RULES

Sweeping Reforms in Force Coming; Regulations Govern Unlawful Speeches

Canadian Press
 Toronto, Sept. 13.—The Toronto board of police commissioners yesterday evening unanimously approved a new series of orders seeking to eliminate disorders in the city's parks resulting from meetings of left-wing political groups, and specifying among other things that persons breaking the law in delivering speeches should be arrested in their homes, if possible, and not on the ground where they are speaking.

The orders also informed policemen they are not expected to arrest speakers unless they actually break the law, and that freedom of speech must be maintained "within the law." The orders eliminated a police training school conducted by Inspector Robert Exander, laid down special rules against settlement of cases out of court, tampering with police records and qualifications.

The rules, it was said, were the fruit of sweeping reforms in force.

Mrs. D. Carley Wins Touch-and-go Sweep

Committee Decides Fourth and Fifth Prize Winners After Hard Performance

Crystal Dairies of Vancouver Win Four-horse Team Event; New Programme To-night

Final results of the Touch-and-go Sweepstakes, feature event on yesterday evening's horse show programme at the Willows Exhibition, were not made known until this morning, after a committee meeting was held to determine the fourth and fifth prize-winners. John Graham Graham, judge of the light horses, refused to name fourth and fifth winners, claiming that only three horses, ridden by Mrs. D. B. Carley, Miss J. A. "Joe" Rithet and Ian Ross, had successfully cleared the jumps, and that the other horses were automatically disqualified when they touched.

The major prize winner in yesterday evening's performance was Mrs. D. B. Carley, riding under the colors of the Victoria Riding Academy, who got two firsts and a third.

Miss Iris H. Bryan, Tacoma rider, who rode Mrs. Dugald L. Gillespie's chestnut gelding, Ambercrest, also had a successful evening, gaining a second in the women's hunters and a first in the hunting pairs.

The horse show will have a different programme this evening, commencing at 8:30 o'clock, in the horse show building.

The final class of the evening, the Touch-and-go, was the most interesting one to the audience of nearly 400. Three horses, Beggar Boy, Mrs. Carley, Nevada, Miss Rithet, and Ian Ross, ridden by Ian Ross, were called back into the ring for a second jump before the judge announced his decision. The first prize of $85 was finally obtained by Mrs. Carley on her brown mare, Pop-Over, for a splendid performance, in which she cleared all the jumps without "tickling." Nevada placed second, Rithet third, Hugh T. Barrett of Shawigan Lake fourth, and Mrs. T. K. Mathews with her chestnut gelding Tarzan, fifth.

In the "opening" four-horse-team class, Crystal Dairies of Vancouver, with a beautiful set of Clydesdales, got the nod over Robt. Thorburn of Vancouver, William Geary was the judge for this event.

BILLY WISP WINS
Billy Wisp, known to many race track fans a year ago, and recently acquired by Miss Margaret Robertson, was adjudged the winner in the novice class. He was ridden by Miss Robertson, who showed many hours of careful training and schooling. Ebony, a black mare, placed second, while third place went to W. L. Stewart Macleod's Volta.

Miss Dorothy Hogan's Buckskin Bob was the winner in the class for ponies, while a few points behind came the beautiful black mare Queen of Spades. Jack Russell, who rode the Queen of Spades, can scarcely reach up to the saddle, and one of the best riders in the ring, having a fine seat and good hands. Third place went to Kittiwa II.

In the women's hunter class, Mrs. D. B. Carley astride the bay gelding Beggar Boy, was adjudged first place winner, while Mrs. D. L. Gillespie's Ambercrest was second.

Mathews, making her first appearance in local show rings for some time, with Tarzan, third.

Miss Bryan, who rode Ambercrest, a newcomer to local riding circles, is a steady performer. She is the possessor of a fine pair of hands and a good knee grip. She is a consistent winner in Washington shows.

HUNTING PAIRS
Going over the jumps as one horse the hunting team made up of Tarzan and Ambercrest, Mrs. T. K. Mathews and Miss Bryan, took first place in the class for hunting pairs. Miss Daphne Allen and Miss Rithet on Surprise and Nevada were awarded second money, while third went to Mrs. Alan McAnally and Mrs. D. B. Carley on Sonny Boy and Beggar Boy.

The special class for up-land horses was won by Miss Dorothy Hogan on Kildare, a chestnut gelding, while the second award went to Miss Margaret Jervia-Walby on Toni, a dark brown gelding.

M.P. DISCOUNTS BENNETT VIEWS

Why Should We Be Asked to Make More Sacrifices?
E. J. Garland Asks

Canadian Press
Vancouver, Sept. 13.—"Why should we be asked to make sacrifices?" queried E. J. Garland, M.P. for Bow River, addressing a mass meeting in the interests of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation which filled the Grand Hall with some 700 or 800 people here yesterday evening. He was referring to an address of Prime Minister B. Bennett in Montreal in which he quoted Mr. Bennett as stating Canadian might be called on to make "further sacrifices."

The speaker described production as made possible without man-power and declared, "Mechanization is the ideal to which the human race has been striving through the centuries, but it has run wild under capitalism. There is no necessity or luxury which we might not all enjoy if we had any proper system of distribution. Men are made who say that problem cannot be solved. It is going to be solved."

He described President Roosevelt as a "gallant gentleman trying to make moral something that is immoral. No one can make capitalism moral. If he doesn't go farther than at present he will find the bubble will break as soon as mob enthusiasm subsides."

Mr. Garland explained the C.C.F. platform and its proposals for socialization. Replying to the charge that the changes proposed were unconstitutional, he said "Prime Minister Bennett showed the way when he declared Beauharnois was a work in the public interest and expropriated it."

Angus MacInnis, M.P. for Vancouver South, chairman, emphasized the need of "mental revolution," declaring "we want your votes but we want you to know why you are voting. If you want to vote for capitalism, vote as you please. It makes no difference to us and none to you."

Complete results in yesterday evening's show were:

"NOT CONSTIPATED FOR SEVEN WEEKS"

Writes Mrs. Johnson After Using Kellogg's All-Bran

Sufferers from constipation will be interested in this unsolicited letter:

"Your All-Bran surely relieves constipation. I am so glad over the good it has done me that I feel I must write and tell you of it."

"For lunch I take a banana, a large one. Six tablespoons of All-Bran in a sauce dish, and dip banana at each bite until all is consumed. I haven't been constipated now for seven weeks."—Mrs. Louise Johnson. (Address furnished upon request.)

Constipation often causes headaches, loss of appetite and energy, sleeplessness. This condition is usually due to lack of "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to further promote regular habits. Kellogg's All-Bran has both, as well as iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in All-Bran is much like that in leafy vegetables. With in the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently, it clears out the wastes.

Try All-Bran in place of patent medicines—often harmful. Two tablespoons daily will overcome most types of constipation. Chronic cases, with each meal. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Use as a cereal or in cooking. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

As in the last ten years the Imperial aim has been the consolidation of the freedom of the Dominions, so the British Empire coming into the fullest sense of unity and co-operating to exercise an ever-growing influence on the cause of world tranquility and peace, said Sir William Clark, High Commissioner for Great Britain in Canada, in the course of an address before the Women's Canadian Club yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. W. G. Wilson presided at the gathering which was held in the Empress Hotel ballroom. Lady Clark, Mrs. J. W. Fordham Johnson and Mrs. A. M. Robertson of Vancouver, formerly of Victoria, to Mr. Allen Orrick Fordyce of St. Louis, Mo.

Of Dundee, green bachelors cloth was the dress chosen by the gracefully slender bride for her wedding, cut on the form-fitting silhouette with simple elegance. The wide cape sleeves were bordered in mink and the neckline of the gown softened into a slight cowl. A brown velvet toque, brooch and shoes were matching accessories, and she wore a corsage bouquet of Tallman roses.

The bride, who was unattended, was given in marriage by her father, and Mrs. Robertson was groomsmen. Following dinner at the hotel, the bride and groom were motored to the Empress Hotel, where they were to be married.

Weddings

McCULLOUGH-LAMBERT

Owing to the recent death of the bride's mother, only relatives and intimate friends were present at the quiet wedding solemnized yesterday evening between Dorothy Isabelle, youngest daughter of Mr. W. A. Lambert and the late Mrs. Lambert, only son of the late Mr. Samuel McCullough, and Mrs. Jean McCullough of Oakland, California. Rev. W. G. Wilson, D.D., performed the ceremony at the home of the bride's father, 1573 Monterey Avenue.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride looked charming in her gown of dove grey tulle, with which she wore a becoming hat of hyacinth blue and accessories of the blue, and carried a sheaf of pale blue delphinium and pale pink roses. Her only attendant was her sister, Miss Mary Lambert, prettily gowned in blue and white organza, with white hat and accessories, and carrying a sheaf of pale pink roses and snapdragons. Mr. William Lambert, the brother of the bride, was groomsmen.

Mrs. Laura Mae Sunde, aunt of the bride, wearing a gown of black lace with corsage bouquet of red roses, assisted in receiving the guests by Mrs. Jean McCullough and Mrs. J. Bowman, of Oakland, Cal., aunt of the bridegroom.

Miss Maud Laity Married Here Yesterday Evening to Bernard E. Ryall

Dahlias, asters and other autumn flowers were banded before the ceremony in the Metropolitan United Church yesterday evening for the ceremony at 8.30 o'clock which united in marriage Maud, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Laity, 1406 Efford Street, to Mr. Bernard E. Ryall, only son of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Ryall of Duncan, V.I.

Rev. E. F. Church officiated, and Mr. Edward Parsons, church organist, played the wedding music and accompanied Mr. W. Brookbank who sang "O Promise Me" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was a radiant picture in her form-fitting wedding gown of ivory satin, with puff sleeves of silk lace, the floor-length skirt flaring below the knees into a full flounce of the silk lace. Her veil of silk net was confined to the head cap fashion beneath a circlet of orange blossoms and fell in soft folds to form a train. She carried a bouquet of white carnations.

Her only attendant was her sister, Miss Mollie Laity, in a pretty frock of pink silk net made with puff sleeves and a long, frilled skirt. Instead of a hat, she wore a bandeau of pink and blue velvet flowers in her hair and carried a bouquet of pink gladioli and carnations.

Mr. Donald McRae, of Duncan, supported the groom and the ushers were Mr. Gordon Bowker and Mr. Donald McRae.

SMALL RECEPTION
A small reception of relatives and a few intimate friends was held at the service at the home of the bride's parents, where the bride and groom welcomed their friends standing before the fireplace, which was banked with early autumn flowers and ferns. Supper was served from a table centred with the three-tiered cake and arranged with a variety of flowers in blending shades.

After a honeymoon on the mainland, Mr. and Mrs. Ryall will make their home in Duncan. The bride left wearing a becoming green tulle ensemble with a becoming hat of beige felt.

The young couple were the recipients of many handsome gifts, and yesterday morning received a cablegram from England conveying felicitations from relatives there.

Talk By J. Hosie

Under the auspices of H.M.S. Resolution Chapter, I.O.D.E. John Hosie, of the Archives Department, Parliament Buildings, will give an address on the "Early History of British Columbia," at St. Mary's Hall, on September 20.

The chapter at its meeting yesterday evening at the home of Mrs. C. R. Wickson, made plans for a bridge party at the home of Mrs. E. D. Patullo, Beach Drive, on Friday, October 13.

Mrs. Kenneth Brown was chosen as Boy Scouts' convener in place of Miss Henslowe, who has left for Grand Forks, and who received a hearty vote of appreciation for her work in connection with scout activities. A box of clothing was sent to the Peace River District during the summer and a layette was recently dispatched to Sunset Prairie at the request of the Red Cross nurse in that centre. Mrs. Andrew Mackenzie gave the first of the series of empire study talks last evening.

Broad Shoulders and "Gnome" Hats Piquant Features For Fall Wear

Mannequins Show Smart Creations on Stage in Automobile Building

Hats "on the up-and-up" and shoulders broadening to extraordinary proportions with the aid of lapels of material and fur are piquant notes in the new fashions destined for fall and winter wear. To judge by the models shown at the Fall Fair yesterday evening by the Hudson's Bay Company, the parade attracted a large audience and long before the hour scheduled for the opening every seat was filled and spectators were on their feet at every point of vantage.

The show will be repeated nightly during the week at 8:30 o'clock.

REMINISCENCE OF GODEY
Fashion designers have evidently found inspiration for this year's styles in the gay 'nineties, and some of the creations are reminiscent of Godey's fashion book and other arbiters of elegance of that period. Sleeves assume enormous proportions when fashioned out of fur as expressed in a dress coat with a huge square bow of the material, and made of black wool fabric with novelty crossover collar and puff sleeves of French seal. Almost robot-like in its effect was a beige coat with a huge square bow of the material at the throat and epaulets of the material adding to the almost grotesque squareness of the shoulders.

Epaulets in very smart brown satin gown finished at the shoulders with squirrel fur, while Mrs. Rattenbury's evening gown of purple velvet achieved the smartness of breadth at the shoulders by the means of cleverly arranged

The sports suits seem to have the monopoly of color. Miss Carey opening this group in a becoming knitted suit of raspberry shade, with hat to match. Miss Pennock modelled a very smart sweater suit of blue and grey trimmed with grey caracul in this group. Another knitted fabric suit was a lizard green, with sweater coat.

LUXURIOUS FUR COATS
Luxurious fur coats were included in the showing, one very lovely model being of lustrous Hudson seal, with a smart Ascot tie of the fur and interesting sleeves. Silver muskrat and Ko-GUIDES TO HOLD

"Any day may be wash day. Indeed, she may wish to have some laundry work done several times a week, especially if there are children. She may prefer to send all her laundry work to the commercial laundry. A good laundry will take the same care of her clothes as she does herself, even the most delicate silks and the finest linens. She may send part of her laundry work to the commercial laundry, or she may take advantage of any of the various services now offered by most laundries, services which send her linen back completely ironed, washed ready to iron, or with certain pieces ironed, as, for example, the flat work. Many laundries now have special facilities for washing blankets and for making them light and fluffy."

Camosun Chapter
Hears Reports

Camosun Chapter, I.O.D.E. faced a busy agenda at its opening meeting of the fall season held yesterday afternoon, the regent, Mrs. A. E. Hopkins, presiding. Standing votes of sympathy were expressed to Mrs. C. Sylvester, Mrs. Wriglesworth, Mrs. McManus and Mrs. Newcomb, in their respective bereavements, and the chapter also sent flowers to Mrs. Sylvester, who recently sustained a nasty fall.

A report of Alexandra Rose Day was read and Mrs. Newcomb thanked for convening the chapter's corner. Reports of soldiers' graves, secondary education, Boy Scouts and Girl Guides were read. Plans were made for a telephone bridge shortly.

The chapter received a letter of thanks from Fred. Landsberg for the generous donation to the Sunshine Camp. An invitation to attend the opening exercises at Quadra Street School, the school of its adoption, was accepted, and the chapter decided to accede to the suggestion of the principal and present a prize to a particularly deserving student.

Miss Agnew was thanked for decorating the chapter's table at the Hudson's Bay china contest. The members were reminded of the joint meeting on Thursday, when Mrs. A. F. Griffiths will present the report of the national annual meeting, after which a social half hour will be enjoyed.

Your Baby
and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

TREAT CAUSES OF MISBEHAVIOR

There is often an inclination on the part of older mothers to criticize the young mother who doesn't make a martyr of herself for her baby. If he cries at bedtime it is, in their estimation, the greater evidence of love to walk or rock him to sleep, than to adopt the more scientific procedure of trying to find out why a healthy baby can't go to sleep when sleepy time arrives. Later, the parent who starts the bad habit of rocking or walking is driven to distraction trying to meet the demands of an increasingly unsatisfiable youngster.

RESTLESS
"Why is my child so restless when asleep and awake?" writes Mrs. F. S. "She is fourteen months old and when awake is always stretching or kicking. She goes to bed at 8 or 9 at night and sleeps until 6 or 7, waking at intervals of three to five times every night. She may, or may not, nap two hours in the morning and two in the afternoon."

"I admit I have gotten into the habit of walking her to sleep, until now she expects it. She is restless while I am walking with her. When I put her down, if she is the least bit awake, the whole thing has to be gone over again. She has never been sick and is a perfect dear except for this habit."

There isn't one word in this mother's letter about the child's diet or general routine, which from the hints dropped is far from perfect. The average baby of fourteen months wakes at 6, has a dish of cereal and milk and a splash of orange juice at 7, has a noon meal at 11 to 12 with a nap immediately afterwards. Not two but one good nap daily. She goes to bed at 6 or 6:30 at night after the evening meal.

CHANGE SCHEDULE
Your baby's diet needs criticism and the nap habits should be altered to conform to her age. There is some reason, either in diet or routine, why the child sleeps so poorly both day and night. The child might demand being walked to sleep but you can't convince me that she wakes up four or five times just for the pleasure of being walked. To continue such a habit without discovering the underlying causes is manifestly unfair to the child as well as yourself. I shall be glad to help you further if you will furnish more details about the child's diet and general care.

HERBS TO FLAVOR YOUR SOUPS AND SALADS

BY SISTER MARY

If you are planning to replant your perennial border this fall consider the sweet herbs along with the delphinium and pyrethrum. A corner given over to sage and thyme and as many other herbs as you have room for, will prove most satisfactory. Changes and variety in the garden are necessary. Because of their aromatic bouquet, these herbs add much to the flavor of all food, but are particularly valuable in soups and salads, where elusive and intriguing flavors are needed.

Most of the sweet herbs which can be grown in the garden are used in cooking. Some such as lemon verbena and sweet lavender are deliciously fragrant and delightful to dry and use in the household linen cupboards.

STORE FOR WINTER USE

Many of the sweet "pot" herbs can be dried and stored for winter use. Some are used fresh, just as they come from the garden. Borage, burnet, sweet basil, thyme, sage and savory are used after being dried. Chives, parsley, dill, celery and mint are used fresh as well as dried.

The perennial herbs, when once established, will come year after year. Thyme, for instance, is a perennial plant which grows in the form of a small shrub from six to ten inches high. The young leaves and shoots are used as the source of the indescribable taste found in French dressings served in fine hotels and restaurants.

Tarragon vinegar should be made in August, when the leaves are at their best, although the dried leaves always can be used. Four cups of wet vinegar are poured over one cup of fresh leaves and allowed to stand three weeks, stirring each day. Then the vinegar is strained and bottled ready for use.

TO-MORROW'S MENU

Dinner: Broiled hamburger steak with mushroom sauce, rice, tomatoes, stewed okra, peach sherbet, plain cake, milk, coffee.

Her vinegars are especially worth while to have on hand for salad dressings. Basil, tarragon, garlic and parsley vinegars are easily made at home. They often are the source of the indescribable taste found in French dressings served in fine hotels and restaurants.

Tarragon vinegar should be made in August, when the leaves are at their best, although the dried leaves always can be used. Four cups of wet vinegar are poured over one cup of fresh leaves and allowed to stand three weeks, stirring each day. Then the vinegar is strained and bottled ready for use.

Uncle Wiggly's Water Pistol

(By HOWARD R. GARIS)

"Dear me!" said Mrs. Longears, the rabbit lady, one morning. "I cannot stand this much longer. Wiggly!"

"Stand what?" asked Uncle Wiggly, who was reading the morning newspaper. "Have you a toothache?"

"No, but I shall soon have a headache if this racket keeps up," said Mrs. Longears with a laugh. "Listen!"

Uncle Wiggly listened and heard: "Whoop de doo do!"

"Bang! Bang!"

"Rub a dub dub!"

"Hurrah! Hurrah! Hurrah!"

"What is it?" asked the rabbit gentleman laying aside his paper.

"Oh, just you rabbit children having a good time," said his wife.

"Hum! My children!" chuckled Uncle Wiggly. "I guess they're half yours, too. But what seems to be the trouble?"

"No trouble at all," answered the rabbit lady. "They seem very well satisfied. They are having lots of fun but they keep hopping in and out of the bungalow and yelling and shouting and laughing until Nurse Jane and I haven't been able to do a thing since we came back from the seashore. There they go again!"

He squirted it!

"Once more Uncle Wiggly heard whoops, shouts, yells, giggles and the pretend bang-bangs of make believe guns, for the boy rabbits were playing cowboys and Indians."

"What can I do?" asked Mr. Longears, helpless like and unromantic.

"First of all," said Mrs. Longears, "go and get the water pistol."

"When school starts the children will have something else to do than run in and out of here shouting. School should have opened some time ago. I don't see why Miss Mouse doesn't ring the bell and start her classes."

"I'll tell you what I'll do, my dear," he went on. "I'll take a little hop over to the school and see if Miss Mouse is there. If she isn't, perhaps the rat janitor can tell me when school will open."

"Very good, Wiggly," spoke his wife. "I hope school will open. I can't stand this much longer."

"Nor I," added Nurse Jane. "I can't keep my tail knotted with the way I have to jump about driving those dear pupils out of my kitchen fifty times a day."

"They'll soon be in school and out of your way," spoke Uncle Wiggly as he hopped over the fields and through the woods to see when the Hollow Stump school would open.

Reaching the place, Uncle Wiggly saw what he thought was the schoolhouse. It was a small, white, one-story building with a red roof. A sign on the door read "Hollow Stump School".

Uncle Wiggly knocked on the door. A small, round, red door opened and a small, round, red face looked out. It was Miss Mouse.

"Hello, Mr. Wiggly," she said. "What brings you here?"

"I suppose you were waving at me the summer vacation?"

"I am always glad to see you, Mr. Longears," squeaked Miss Mouse, nodding. "But I wasn't waving at you."

"What were you doing then?" asked the bunny gentleman.

"I am cleaning the windows," said Miss Mouse. "They are very dirty, not having been cleaned all summer. As soon as I get the windows cleaned I shall open school and teach my animal pupils. But I fear that will take a long time."

"Why?" asked Uncle Wiggly.

"Because I am so little it will take me a long time to clean the outside of the windows," said the teacher. "I can wipe clean the inside all right, but to clean the outside will be very hard."

"Not hard, for I shall help you," offered Uncle Wiggly. "Wait and I'll be back soon."

A dainty supper was served, the table being decorated with pale-pinked phlox and gladioli. A handsome four-tier wedding cake lay on the table, with tall pink candles in silver sconces on either side. Rev. Thos. Keyworth proposed the toast to the bride and groom, the groom replying with a toast to the bride, which was responded to by the bride, who then proposed a toast to the bride and groom, which was responded to by the bride and groom.

STARS WIN IN WOMEN'S GOLF

Ada MacKenzie, Margery Kirkham and Mrs. Bearsto Advance in Canadian Open

Matches Featured By One-sided Victories: Three Ontario Players Beaten

Winnipeg, Sept. 13.—Four outstanding players moved into the second round in the Canadian Women's open golf tournament here yesterday as the first round was completed. All were of championship calibre and their scores led followers to believe they would be the surviving quartette in the semi-finals.

Margery Kirkham, Montreal, defending champion, with a card of 82, Miss Mac-Kenzie played with the confidence of a champion yesterday to score seven par holes of the eleven she toured in defeating Mrs. S. M. Connolly, Winnipeg, 9 and 7. The driving power that won her the prize for the longest drive yesterday, sent her off from the tees with a substantial start over her opponent, and but for persistent trouble on greens her margin on score would have been greater. She lost only one hole, the first.

ONE-SIDED WINS
Miss Kirkham scored only five pars in downing Mrs. Newton Wallis, 6 and 5. The defender ran afoul of the trickily-placed traps on the first nine and was obliged to halve five holes before she could gain the mastery over her hard-fighting adversary.
Miss Papell found little difficulty in disposing of her fellow townsman,
Mrs. J. Simser, Toronto, 7 and 6.
Mrs. Bearsto won her match with Verna Hemming, Winnipeg, on the thirteenth.

Prominent among other visiting golfers who advanced to the second round were Marjory Murphy, Ottawa, who defeated Gwen DeGruy, Winnipeg, 5 and 3. Mrs. W. G. Moore,
Toronto, won from Barbara Northwood,
Winnipeg, 2 and 1. Lorna Blackburn, from Ottawa, vanquished Mrs. J. H.
Forster, Winnipeg, on the fourteenth.

First round play eliminated three players from Ontario. Mrs. H. P. Pe-lton and Mrs. Edwin Crockett, both of Toronto, lost. Mrs. Crockett, a new comer, as did Mrs. Spears, Hamilton. They entered the first round consolation-play to-day.

MUSCLES THINK AS DOES BRAIN

Method of Detection Is Explained to Psychological Association

(By Howard W. Blakeley, Associated Press Science Editor)

Chicago, Sept. 13.—A method of detecting dreams and thoughts by electrical apparatus which shows that muscles as well as the brain participate in thought, was reported to the American Psychological Association yesterday.
"This does not mean," said Prof.
Louis William Max of New York University, who made the report, "that a good athlete is necessarily a good thinker. But it does indicate that the muscles play a more important role in thinking than they are usually given credit for."

He used sensitive instruments which photograph electrical currents as small as one-millionth of a volt coming from the human body. These currents, he found, are generated in the muscles of deaf persons during thinking and other conscious states. They tend to disappear in sleep, but when dreams commence, the electricity again appears.

Dr. Max reported on the significance of 650 photographs of "thought currents" he has taken. He used deafened persons mostly, particularly deaf mutes, because they are in the habit of "talking" with finger signs. Their fingers, he believed, would be more likely than normal digits to register what was passing through the brain. Tests of normal persons bore out his theory.
Sometimes even the normal's fingers gave evidence of mental work, but not so consistently. Currents were produced when arithmetic and other problems were being solved. The harder the problem, usually the greater the electric flow.

Simple reading often produced electrical currents. Dr. Max said that he at all in an expert proofreader. Similarly, counting Xs and Os in an alphabetic series which started the current in most persons, did not start a single volt in the proofreader. The records indicate that several dreams could take place in a consecutive two or three minutes. This, Dr. Max said, indicates that dreams may last longer than the "classic one or two seconds."

ENGLAND IS GOING AHEAD

Talk of Depression and Un-employment a Thing of the Past

Canadian Press
Vancouver, Sept. 13.—Talk of depression and unemployment in Great Britain is a thing of the past and the mother country is definitely going ahead, said Hon. R. L. Maitland, K.C., in an address to a service club here.

"There has been a general improvement in conditions in England in the past year," Maitland said. "The British with half a million men taken off the bread line and put back to work.
Great Britain is looking forward, not back."

Great breadth of vision in London," continued the speaker, "will impress you. Among men of position the idea of regarding overseas dominions as colonies exists no longer and Canadian and citizens of other dominions are to be found occupying seats in the House of Lords, on the privy council, and in other responsible positions."

Mr. Maitland declared that the economy conference, as far as the British empire is concerned, was not a failure, for it brought before the people of the empire more clearly than ever there that everything necessary for life is produced within the empire and it is possible to negotiate mutually satisfactory agreements between its component parts.

ANN HARDING AT CAPITOL

Has Leading Role With William Powell in "Double Harness" Opening To-day

"Double Harness" co-starring Ann Harding and William Powell is to-day at the Capitol Theatre.
As modern as to-morrow, as sparkling as champagne and as human as life itself, Miss Harding and Powell are sure-fire audience pleasing favorites. Their talents ease comfortable and entertainingly into their "Double Harness" stellar roles, forming a perfect team.

Miss Harding is seen in the most glamorous and alluring characterization of her career as a girl who has militant ideas about marriage. Powell is equally fascinating as the debonaire and wedding-wary bachelor whom she lures into marriage.
There is also a Laurel and Hardy comedy.

The culmination of twelve years effort on the part of the Canadian Social Hygiene Council is realized in "Damaged Lives," now showing at the Dominion Theatre. For the first time a subject dealing with the theme in this picture has been made into a talking picture. The featured players are Diane Sinclair and Lyman Williams.
Along with the feature are produced a special set of supplementary pictures dealing with certain phases of anatomy and physiology.

DOMINION THEATRE

"The Monkey's Paw," now at the Playhouse Theatre, is an authentic picture of English home life; its characters are men and women caught under the spell of a mystic Hindu charm credited with supernatural powers. How these victims of their own imagination build up a tragedy to a shattering climax of high melodrama, offers one of the most absorbing pictures of the year, critics state.

On the same programme is "Bondage," a powerful story of the youth of today in search of happiness, its attainment of unexpected "Pard." The results, and the coldness shown by a world that turns its back on their pain.

COLUMBIA THEATRE

Nearly 7,500 persons made up the cast of "The Sign of the Cross," now showing at the Columbia Theatre.
These include Frederic March, Elissa
Landi, Claudette Colbert, Charles Laughton, and others in leading roles, and thousands of "extras" who appear in Roman street scenes and in the arena in which Nero stages his bloody games.

In "Sally in Our Alley" now at the Empire Theatre audiences follow
Orville in the lovable part of "Sally" in her rapid climb from the humble role of the singing waitress in a small cafe in the East End of London to the heights of the drawing rooms of Mayfair. It can be said that her rapid career carried her from the East End of London to the aristocratic quarters of the West End but her irresponsible humor and clownish antics brought her back where she was more in her element.

Commission Plan May Be Solution to B.C. Soccer Difficulties

Time for Moguls to Bury the Hatchet and Try Co-operation

Sharkey May Get Another Surprise When He Meets Levinsky

RECOMMENDATION by the British Columbia Football Association for a commission of three members to govern soccer in this province is a good move providing footballers all over British Columbia lend their entire support. It is more than likely that the Dominion Football Association will approve the scheme as mapped out by the B.C.F.A. and soccer in B.C. will go under a new governing system. There is no doubt the football in this province has been over-governed in recent years. The various associations and leagues have been falling over themselves, getting entangled in various arguments and disputes with the result that soccer has been going back instead of ahead. Strange as it may seem, there has been no harmony among the football forces in this province in years. One squabble was settled only to have another arise. This has been going on year after year and has reached a stage where the fans are getting fed up.

It is time the officials and players buried the hatchet and co-operated in the best interest of the game. There is no reason in the world why harmony cannot reign among the bosses of this popular winter sport. It has a great following and good soccer will always attract good gates in Victoria, Vancouver and elsewhere. In this province, and it will if governed properly, it is quite possible the commission plan will be the solution to all the difficulties but even this scheme cannot succeed if the various groups are at one another's throats all the time. Let everybody get together and concentrate on putting on first rate matches and see how the brand of football will improve. Forget all the pettiness that has crept into soccer in the last two or three seasons both on the Island and in Vancouver.

The Patrick family received quite a send-off on their recent arrival in Montreal as evidenced by the following articles carried in one of the eastern city's papers:

"Lester Patrick has come back home. The Patricks are living in Westmount now, while the two boys, both very able basketball players, are headed for berths with local teams. Lynn and Murray are the two youngsters who gained fame in athletics at the Winged Wheelers last night, and look like a capable wing. Murray is still going to high school. Like their father, they are fine physical specimens, who come in the wake of a fine reputation gained in Coast Athletics. Before leaving Victoria, Lester and his family were tendered a great send-off. Lester knows little about what is going on in hockey, as he has been out of touch with it all summer, and is a firm believer that it isn't a game which should be worried about too much in the off season. Frank is expected here in a few weeks, when he will get busy about the task of assembling his referees together for their winter work."

Leaping Lena Levy rushes into print again with the astonishing announcement, that her protegee and brother, King Levinsky, will slug with former heavyweight champion Jack Sharkey when the two meet at Comiskey Park, Chicago, Sept. 15.

"My boy is a knockout puncher," the eccentric ex-fish peddler's manager, who cooed related the other day. "And he's hitting harder every day."

Sure he'll slug with Sharkey. He'll slug with Sharkey. Sharkey wants to slug or not, because the Kingfish is a slugger at whatever he tries.

And there just is a chance that Sharkey, stepping out to Chicago and taking off his coat for a guarantee of $25,000 may wake up again, as he did after the Carners fight, asking his second who threw that brick at him.

In that even the Kingfish would be right up there with the other two strange men, Primo Carners and Max Baer.

There are stories from Boston to the effect that Sharkey had realized how far back he had gone and had trained on buffonery and ice cream for the Carners thing.

He is aiming to make a piece of change here and there this winter, as who isn't, and has gone back to work to see how good he is with the idea of five fights in mind. If he can't pass the Kingfish, and there is every reason to believe he can't if he comes in all roly-poly as he appeared against Carners, his four fight after the Kingfish through with him will retail at five cents apiece.

Sharkey has the same thing to watch out for against Levinsky that he failed to see coming from Carners—a wild punch out of nowhere, with plenty of power behind it.

Then you would have the picture of a former fish peddler gunning for the heavyweight title seriously.

Thistles to Meet

Champion Rallies To Rip and Tear Way To Great Win

Chicago Lightweight Calls on Reserve Strength to Whip Former Titleholder

BOUT HAS 40,000 FANS IN UPROAR

Referee Arthur Donovan Casts Deciding Vote; Pair Never Let Up Once

New York, Sept. 13.—The big town, toughest in the world to convince, was ready to-day to admit Barney Ross, Chicago, to the ranks of the world ring champions.

Out of one of the most savage, grueling fights ever seen in a local ring, the Jewish battler from the middle west emerged with his second victory over the veteran Tony Canzoneri, from whom he won the lightweight title less than three months ago at Chicago.

With 40,000 howling fans looking on at the Polo Grounds yesterday evening, most of them pulling fervently for Canzoneri to turn the tables on the former minor champion and reclaim his crown. Ross withstood Tony's early rushes, caught up with him midway of the fight and beat him all over the ring before it was over.

As in their fight at Chicago, it was so close it required the vote of the referee to reach a decision. Arthur Donovan cast his ballot for Ross after the judges had split.

Round after round, they ripped at each other, first one then the other weakening, then coming back, then fading off again under a punishing storm that never gave the huge crowd a quiet moment. But toward the end it was the stamina that oozed from every muscle of the twenty-two-year-old champion that lifted him onto the closing round, saved the day for him. Judge Arthur Kelly voted, when it was all over, for Canzoneri by a margin of eight rounds to seven, while Judge Harold Barnes gave the defending champion a decisive edge with nine rounds won, two lost and four even.

It was up to Referee Donovan to decide then, he cast his vote for Ross, giving him eight rounds, Canzoneri four, with three even.

Donovan took the sixth, eighth and ninth rounds from Canzoneri because of low blows, thereby accounting exactly as $14,000, and net receipts for Promoter Tim Mara, $103,728.

A round by round description of the fight follows:

ROUND ONE

Canzoneri, grimly determined and looking like a miniature Babe Ruth from his neck up, stepped into Ross with a straight left, wrestled with him in a clinch and flung an over-hand right to the head. Boiling craftily, the clean-cut Chicago youngster snapped two left hooks into Canzoneri's head, then drove a hard right uppercut to the side. Tony looped a left to the body and drove the champion to the ropes with a swift body fusillade but Ross fought his way clear with a hard right to the jaw that shook Tony. Ross ducked easily as Canzoneri threw two long rights to the head, slipped a left hook to the chin, and caught Tony on the jaw with a pretty right-hand smash, the hardest punch of the evening. Canzoneri fell into a clinch as the bell sounded.

ROUND TWO

Ross stabbed pretty with his left hand, and the crowd cheered him as quite the perfect little fighting machine they had been warned to expect. Canzoneri, looking a bit puzzled, headed to bend low and wave from side to side to escape Barney's flicking left. Tony rushed the champion to the ropes and belted his body but Barney stepped back, pressed Canzoneri against the hemp, and shot three left hooks to the head. As Barney opened up it seemed to suit Canzoneri perfectly. Pivoting back, he suddenly stepped in with three terrific rights to the head and Barney clinched frantically. Coolly Canzoneri whipped a left to the body and drove another short, jarring right to the chin. Before he could follow his advantage the bell sounded.

ROUND THREE

Taking no chances, Ross tucked his head behind his left shoulder and stabbed Canzoneri's head with a left. Canzoneri slipped to the side and banged another right to Ross's head, starting a wet over the champion's eye. Ross chose to stay in close and they swapped a pair of hard left hooks to the body. Again they came together, flailing to the middle and trying to reach each other's head with short rights. They roared in the centre of the ring and the crowd roared as they traded right crosses to the head. Ross fighting back with all the fury of a champion at bay as Tony lashed out at him without a pretence at defence. Tiring, they bobbed and swayed from each other's punches, fell into a clinch, and were stabbing easily at each other's head with long lefts as the gong rang.

ROUND FOUR

Ross came out with his teeth clenched and his head down and Canzoneri straightened him up with a right "cut-out-to-the-jaw." Canzoneri dropped a long right over Ross's left hand; but took a half dozen lefts in the body as they came together. Forcing the milling now, Ross fired his left steadily at Canzoneri's head and dropped two sudden left hooks to the

ROSS READY TO BATTLE TONY AGAIN

Lightweight Champion Prepared to Meet Canzoneri at Any Time Or Place

Canzoneri Bet $3,000 on Himself He Was So Sure of Victory; Says Little

New York, Sept. 13.—Barney Ross, the Chicago fighting man, thinks there should be no question now of his right to be called the lightweight champion of the world, but if there is he is willing to try again.

"He can have another fight any time he wants it, in his home town or mine," he said, "the go-looking youngster from Chicago said as he sat in his dressing-room yesterday evening after defending his title against Tony Canzoneri, from whom he took the crown in Chicago on a close decision less than three months ago.

Unmarked except for a slight puffiness about the eyes, Ross smilingly admitted that he was not quite sure where he was twice in the fight, especially at the end of the eleventh round when Tony shook him with a left hook just as the bell rang.

Canzoneri, who was so sure he would win, bet $3,000 on himself, had little to say, and that little was in monosyllables, and that little was "at the end."

body. The crowd roared again as they stood in the centre of the ring like a pair of game cocks, stabbing, feinting, whipping left and right to the head and body in a beautiful picture of box skill and punching accuracy. Tony danced speedily around the champion and whaled in with a long right to the head. They matched wits in another fast exchange and Ross dropped his right to the body as the bell sounded.

ROUND FIVE

Ross started cautiously again, snarling at Canzoneri's face with a nervous left jab as Tony bobbed in front of him looking for an opening for a right cross. Canzoneri slipped under the champion's chest and hooked a left to the body and a short right to the head, but as he came away Ross whipped his left three times into the champion's chest and hooked a left to the body and Tony sped around the ring as Tony chased the champion with looping lefts to the sides. Ross shook him off, tucked his head down, and sent Tony doubling with a vicious left and right slam to the pit of the stomach. The curly-headed challenger pulled away, danced a moment, then came back with two left hooks to the body and a half dozen long rights that Ross ducked inside. They were bobbing on the ropes, trying to drive through body punches at the gong.

ROUND SIX

Ross pulled the challenger into a clinch and rapped him smartly with a half dozen rights to the head. Bosing with all the stops out, whipping about the champion, Tony baffled him with a volley of lefts and rights to the head, then drove in close to hammer both hands to the body. Apparently slipping behind, Ross took a half dozen right uppercuts to the head to clear before he forced his challenger to the ropes and clumped him heartily about the head and body with both hands. Tony took a left to the head in order to land a left to the body, and then spun the champion about with a right to the edge of foul territory. Ross sought to make an inside fight of it so they looked one arm and tore savagely at each other's bodies. As they came away Ross whipped a left hook to Tony's chest and blood started trickling from a scratch under the challenger's eye. Apparently inspired by the sight of first blood, Ross chased his challenger into the ropes, pouring both hands into Canzoneri's body. Tony tried to dance away, but the champion was relentless, and he landed another heavy left hook to the cheek as the bell sounded.

ROUND SEVEN

Working like a well oiled machine, Canzoneri pumped his left into Ross's face and stepped easily away from the champion's left jabs. Ross belted two rights along Tony's waistline and Tony stabbed back with a left that was on the edge of foul territory. Ross sought to make an inside fight of it so they looked one arm and tore savagely at each other's bodies. As they came away Ross whipped a left hook to Tony's chest and blood started trickling from a scratch under the challenger's eye. Apparently inspired by the sight of first blood, Ross chased his challenger into the ropes, pouring both hands into Canzoneri's body. Tony tried to dance away, but the champion was relentless, and he landed another heavy left hook to the cheek as the bell sounded.

ROUND EIGHT

Luring Ross into stabbing with his left, Tony bobbed away from the punches and shot a half dozen left hooks to the head. They worked into the ropes and the milling was desperate as both poured both hands to the body and paid little attention to where they landed. Ross's terrific jab along the belt line appeared to hurt the challenger and he held on and there were cries of foul. Referee Donovan paid no attention, and Canzoneri took the matter into his own hands. Twice he ripped his left and his right into Ross's head, but Barney hit him blow for blow with a body attack that bent the challenger double. Head down, both fists flying like a leaden hail from a machine gun, Ross smashed at Canzoneri's belt line. Tony fought him off and flung a left hook to the face that started Ross's nose bleeding at the bell.

Disease Kills 15,000 Ducks

Calgary, Sept. 13.—Members of the Calgary Fish and Game Association yesterday prepared to visit Stobart Lake in an effort to analyze a mysterious malady killing thousands of ducks in the Gleichen district. Dr. L. E. Smith, a member of the Association, estimated more than 15,000 ducks lie dead along the shores of the lake.

Discovery of leeches in the nostrils of ducks led to the belief the leeches were causing the sickness. Another theory advanced by Prof. William Rowan, University of Alberta, and other authorities is that botulism is the cause with bacteria at work in the water, killing birds that drink it.

New Westminster Adanacs Drop Action on B.C. Lacrosse Play-offs

Vancouver, Sept. 13.—An obstacle in the path of British Columbia lacrosse play-offs was removed yesterday when the Adanacs Lacrosse Club of New Westminster withdrew its application for an injunction to enjoin Abbotsford Hotel Lacrosse Club of Vancouver from participating to-night in a provincial play-off.

Withdrawal was made in Supreme Court by A. A. Milledge, Adanacs counsel. J. O. Gill appeared for defendants, including the B.C. Amateur Lacrosse Association.

Chief Justice Aulay Morrison suggested the game take place and legal rights be determined later. The case arose out of a disputed game between Adanacs and Abbotsford, which was finally awarded the Hotelmen.

Bill Leard Sees Opening For Northwest Circuit Including Victoria

Bill Leard, former manager of Victoria's professional baseball team, believes the time is ripe for establishment of a six or eight-team league in the northwest, according to a communication reaching the mayor from San Francisco where Mr. Leard is residing.

A league with teams from Victoria, Vancouver, Seattle, Spokane, Portland and Tacoma would get a class "B" rating and provide keen competition, he says. Encouragement of young players could be one of the chief objectives.

Now is the time to start organizing for next season, Mr. Leard states.

Hyperion Winner of St. Leger Classic

Lord Derby's Favored Colt Takes Stakes By Three Lengths Over Felicitation

Scarlet Tiger in Third Position; Completes "Double" For Derby Victor

Doncaster, Eng., Sept. 13.—Lord Derby's young colt, Hyperion, won the historic St. Leger Stakes to-day with the Aga Khan's Felicitation second and Lord Durham's scarlet Tiger third.

Hyperion, chestnut colt by Galnabough out of Sene, who won the Derby earlier in the summer, went to the post a heavy favorite.

The St. Leger Stakes, fifth of the English turf's five classic races for three-year-olds, is the oldest of the great English races and is run over the mile, six furlongs and 1,329 yards course.

Fourteen of the crack three-year-olds of the year ran and Hyperion in winning repeated the feat of his illustrious sire Galnabough who won the "double" in 1918.

Hyperion, firm favorite at 6 to 4, won easily by three lengths, while a keenly contested "Felicitation" and "Scarlet Tiger" followed. The Aga Khan's horse ran at 22 to 1, and Scarlet Tiger at 100 to 1.

POPULAR WIN

A great roar went up from 300,000 throats as Hyperion flashed past the finish line. The win was a popular one. Lord Derby is one of the staunchest supporters of the British turf and his victory to-day was the fifth in the St. Leger.

The time of the race was 3 minutes 6.4 seconds, which was not considered good in view of the fine condition of the course.

Raymond broke into a lead at the start, followed by Hyperion, King Salmon, Interlace, Sans Peine, Solitaires, Manitoba, Felicitation and Thor. At the half-mile Hyperion dashed into the lead, followed by Sans Peine, Raymond and King Salmon.

DRAWS CLEAR

Three furlongs from the finish Hyperion drew clear from King Salmon, Sans Peine, Raymond, Scarlet Tiger, Felicitation and Young Lover, but none had the slightest chance, and the favorite won easily.

King Salmon was fourth, Harinero fifth and Ashish 10 to 5 at Con Jones Park to take a one-game lead for the title. A win to-night gives the Jewellers the championship and will send them against Victoria Sons of Canada Friday night in the B.C. playoffs.

ALL OFFICERS REAPPOINTED

Bob Whyte Again Elected President of Sunday School Basketball League

All officers of the Victoria and District Sunday School Basketball League were re-elected at the annual meeting at the Y.M.C.A. yesterday evening. The 1933-34 executives are: Bob Whyte, president; Vivian Shoemaker, vice-president; and Fred Harding, secretary-treasurer.

Entries for the league will close on September 25, and it is expected that the opening game will be played early in October. There will be a knockout competition after the regular schedule has been completed.

Certain amendments to the constitution were suggested at yesterday's meeting, and will receive further consideration before being presented to the next meeting. A vote of thanks was accorded the officers for their fine work during last season.

WRESTLE TO DRAW

San Francisco, Sept. 13.—George Wilson, 202, Seattle, and Scottie Dawkins, 205, Scotland, wrestled to a thirty-minute draw here yesterday evening.

The Ottawa players were Jack Moussette, who played in Paris last year; Eddie Cadieux, Henri Matte, a brother of Joe Matte, the professional, and Bobby Giddens, former captain of the Harvard University hockey team. They will be joined in New York by Morin, Archambault and Calodrette of Montreal.

Campbell and Dolp Unable To Qualify In U.S. Golf Play

Two Pacific Northwest Entrants Finish on Border; Fischer Is Medalist

SEVERAL NEW RECORDS SEEN

Thirty-six-hole Qualifying Test Sees Youth Dominate; Goodman Is Seventh Kenwood Country Club, Cincinnati, O., Sept. 13.—Two youthful collegians waged a record-smashing fight yesterday for the qualifying medal for the United States amateur golf championship with Johnny Fischer of Cincinnati and the University of Michigan triumphant by a single stroke over P. Sawyer of Minneapolis and the University of Minnesota.

Fischer captured the low scoring honors for the second consecutive year with the new record figures of 72-69—141, in one of the wildest and most exciting finishes in the thirty-seven-year history of the national tournament.

"Scotty" Campbell, Seattle, holder of the Canadian P.W.A. amateur crown, and Frank Dolp, Portland, the two entries from the Pacific Northwest, both failed to qualify. Campbell made a game attempt yesterday but finished 150, while Dolp, who did not get his game organized yesterday and his 78 added to Monday's 74, was two shots shy of a tie for last place. SOMERVILLE HAS 143

Sandy Somerville, the London, Ontario, amateur, finished with two strokes behind the medalist and gave undeniable proof that his game is tuned for a strong defence of the title he won last year.

Home-town idol and one of the greatest of a fast rising crop of young United States golfers, Fischer gave a brilliant performance under heavy pressure. His closing 69, two under par, equaled the new competitive record for the United States, noted out Sawyer and lowered the tournament qualifying record by one stroke.

FORMER RECORD

Sawyer, who finished second with 72-70—142, had no sooner equalled the old mark than Fischer came galloping home to wipe out the record that had stood for nine years. The mark of 142 was set in 1924 by D. Clarke Corkran of Baltimore, equaled twice by Bob Jones, in 1927 and 1930, and by Fischer just a year ago.

Fischer and Sawyer, with 72 each yesterday, both started their final qualifying round two shots behind the pace-setters, Somerville and young Jack Munger of Dallas, Texas.

Fischer caught Somerville at the turn and Sawyer passed the champion on the last nine. Munger faded from the pace-setting picture in a jangle that carried nearly a dozen brand-new national tournament figures into the qualifying vanguard.

Fischer knew what he had to do: close the stretch, and so did the winning gallery of nearly 2,000 fans who watched the twenty-one-year-old son of a Cincinnati mail man achieve the golfing heights.

Somerville, who started match play defence of his title to-day in the first of two eighteen-hole rounds, shot the best qualifying score of his career.

YOUTH DOMINATES

For the most part, it was strictly a field day for the country's golfing youth. Tied for fourth place at 144 each were the seasoned Gus Moreland of Dallas, Texas, and two newcomers, Jim Milward, twenty-year-old Oregonian, entry, and William R. Long, a young Austin, Texas, bank clerk. Milward started the day's fireworks with a hole-in-one on the first hole.

Goodman missed at least seven chances for birdies, posting 72-73—145. English carded 74-71—145.

Two more tournament records were broken as the final day developed. The thirty-six-hole score of 150 marked the qualifying limit and that a playoff was needed among an even dozen who finished there. This morning the twelve in the 150 bracket battled it out on the elimination system for eight places remaining to round out the

Apprentice Boys Have Good Time At Willows Oval

Young and Daniels Each Ride
Pair of Winners; Holecko
Also Has Two

PUBLIC CHOICES DOWN IN FRONT

Rag Bag and Tommy Doyle Stage Thrilling Duel; Gunstrap Takes Feature

Riding two winners each, two apprentices, Daniels and Young, and a veteran of the saddle, Steve Holecko, provided the feature of the racing at the Willows yesterday afternoon. Daniels won the first and the fifth with Ina Mae and Wo Be, while Young won the second and sixth with Rag Bag and Maryland, and Holecko the fourth and last with Stanshill and Gun Strap. The other event on the card was won by a Victoria jockey, Chipping, who has been riding in his best form here this week.

The feature event, the final of the card, provided one of the most exciting races of the day, even though the finish was not as close as some of the events. Holecko, on Gun Strap, elected to allow Bernice Van to set all the early pace and saving ground at all times moved into contention, surging off the back stretch and breezing to the front at the turn for home, won under mild urging. Bernice Van held on gamely but had to relinquish the place to Mount Elgon right in the final stride.

The third day's racing was just as keen as one could wish for. Public choices and well-played horses popped across the wire with regularity, and outsiders, which held the spotlight Monday, did not fare any too well.

The most spectacular finish of the matinee came in the second, the first half of the gallop double, when Rag Bag, the most consistent of all the thoroughbreds in British Columbia this season, came back to register his third consecutive win under a brilliant ride by the apprentice, Young. The lad clearly outdid another apprentice, E. Spoori, and gained a victory for the first time. Rag Bag, over the wire to catch the eye of the judges in the final stride.

FAVORITE BEATEN

An odds-on favorite, Adam Somers, was beaten in the first by J. L. Seobey's Ina Mae, which cut out all the pace and lasted to hold off the closing rush of the public choice. The latter carried top weight of 118 pounds, and was beaten by a length. Fanny Pasternak was third.

Ballot Whittier charged through in the stretch to take the half length decision in the third from Star Crescent, which hung on better than usual after being a forward factor throughout. Western Holiday surprised by taking the show, paying off the best price of the day, $12.50, in the third position.

Stanshill completed the second half of the daily double by making every post a winner in the fourth. Goldstream Girl was second after challenging the pacemaker several times. Wo Be led from start to wire in the fifth and returned the best straight price of the day. The Irvine filly started a little better than four to one. Judge Austin was second, after chasing the lead from the start. Voltmeter, hung on for the show, with the favorite, Architect, out of the money.

Maryland, beaten as a favorite the previous day, came right back to win in the sixth and the veteran Coeur de Lion finished second to her despite carrying the top impost. The results: First race—Western Holiday, six furlongs and thirty yards; Ina Mae (103) Daniels; Wo Be (107) Young; Fanny Pasternak (118).

Play will commence on Tuesday, October 3, and continue on every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday thereafter.

ROUND NINE
Ross danced lightly about, stabbing left jab at Tony's head, but the challenger kept his face a shade of an inch out of the way. Suddenly opening up with both hands, Canzoneri shot a left hook to the point of the champion's jaw and followed it with a right cross that seemed almost to tear Ross's head loose. The champion backed away. But Canzoneri was a madman as he chased him about the ring flinging left and rights, in a steady stream into the champion's head as the crowd stood on its feet and howled at the savagery of the attack. Ross could scarcely get his hands up as Tony beat him from pillar to post, from his temples down to his waistline. Bitterly Ross tried to fight back and he was leaving his way out of the wilderness, just beginning to reach Canzoneri with rights to the body as the bell rang.

ROUND TEN
Ross came up a bit slowly and Canzoneri danced freshly about him, pecking his face with lefts, aching for a right-hand opening. He got in one hard right before Ross headed and came back at him with two hard left hooks to the body. They stroked their way around the ring, belting lefts and rights to the body and coming out of a clinch. Canzoneri shot Ross back with a right uppercut. Tony striving frantically to get his right over cleanly, left himself open to Ross's body attack and the champion slugged him with four solid thumps to the body. Tony chased the champion to the ropes, banging lefts to the head, but Ross put his head down and fought back as the round ended.

ROUND ELEVEN
Both seemed tired and they pecked with lefts in desultory fashion until Canzoneri swung a long right to the body. Ross ripped back frantically with body punches, and Tony stood toe to toe with him, smashing to the ribs. Canzoneri took a left jab on the side of his head and dropped a right on Ross's head, which he shook off. The stronger Ross drove both hands with terrific power to Canzoneri's body. Tony seemed to wilt, and he pulled himself together, and raked the champion's head with a volley of lefts, and a right cross that stood the hair on the back of Ross's head.

ROUND TWELVE
They measured left hands to the face, stalking about in the center of the ring, both looking for openings for a right hand. Tony found one first, drove one hard right to the chin. He followed it with two lefts, one of which he followed with a right. Ross drove both hands with terrific power to Canzoneri's body. Tony seemed to wilt, and he pulled himself together, and raked the champion's head with a volley of lefts, and a right cross that stood the hair on the back of Ross's head.

ROUND THIRTEEN
Promptly at the bell they drummed into a clinch again and Tony had the better of a brief exchange as he flung his left again and again into the face of Ross's stomach. But nothing seemed to daunt the champion or lessen his stamina. As Tony fired another barbed right, Ross punched back with a right, which he followed with a left, which he followed with a right. Ross came right back with two right smashes under the heart that made Canzoneri hold. It was one of the most desperate battles they have had seen in years as they ripped at each other, firing ceaselessly, never backing up. Ross fired his hand so hard into the body of Canzoneri's lips, Dog tire, but he refused to give up. Canzoneri slugged it out with the champion in a corner until the bell rang.

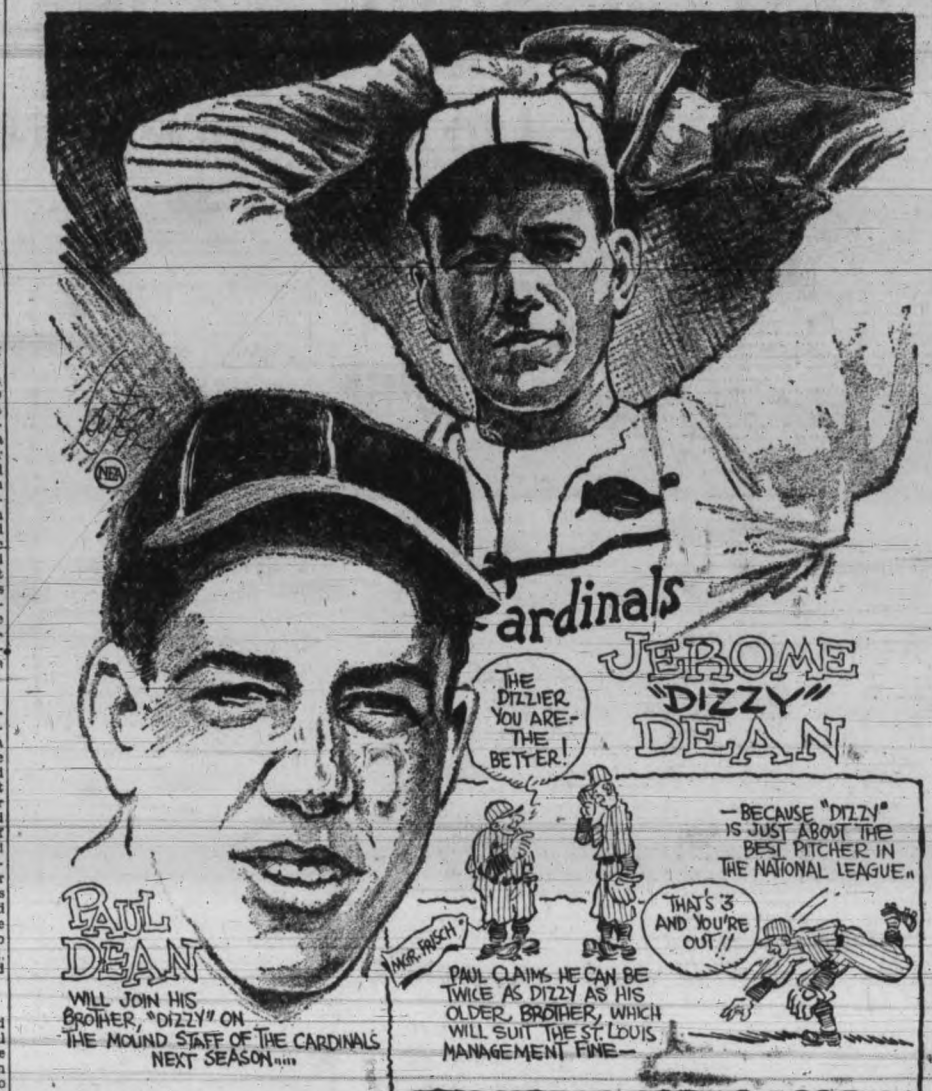

ROUND FOURTEEN
Ross stabbed Tony's head with a left then fell into a restful clinch. They went into a restful clinch, neither, both tried, until Ross met his challenger coming in with a thumping left to the body. Ross stabbed carefully at Tony's head and Canzoneri missed a sweeping left hook and nearly stumbled, he was so tired. Both missed and held on and the crowd did not seem to begrudge them their rest as they obviously stored up stamina for the final burst. Ross opened up with a right, which he followed with a left, which he followed with a right. Ross came right back with two right smashes under the heart that made Canzoneri hold. It was one of the most desperate battles they have had seen in years as they ripped at each other, firing ceaselessly, never backing up. Ross fired his hand so hard into the body of Canzoneri's lips, Dog tire, but he refused to give up. Canzoneri slugged it out with the champion in a corner until the bell rang.

ROUND FIFTEEN
They went straight to their body smashing, but Canzoneri straightened the champion up with a right to the head. Tony was on him with a tremendous effort, whaling both hands to the body, but Ross recovered quickly. Barney met his challenger head on with a terrific body fusillade and Tony held on, very tired. As Ross ripped solely to the body, Canzoneri ripped his head back with a right uppercut. Tony held on as Ross flailed his sides with a bitter, desperate two-fist attack. Tony's left then his right, hit Ross's jaw but the champion doubled him with a terrific blast to the body. Both hands tore into Canzoneri's sides and as Tony swung back to the body, both wilted. They were still clugging at the final bell.

SHEA WHIPS TRUJILLO
Los Angeles, Sept. 13.—Outslugging his opponent and beating him badly with a vicious left hook to the chin, Eddie Shea, 182, Chicago, won a technical knockout in the seventh round over Eddie Trujillo, 182, Denver, at the Olympic Auditorium yesterday evening.

DIZZY HEIGHTS

By Laufer

After helping the Columbus Red Birds, a Cardinal form, to win a pennant this year by his brilliant pitching, Paul Dean has been called in by headquarters to join his brother, Jerome "Dizzy" Dean, on the St. Louis staff. "Dizzy" Dean several times has been quoted, "If you think I'm dizzy, you ought to see my brother, Paul." So with the two Dizzies on the same team, the Cardinals should reach what you might call the heights of dizziness.

DEATH-DEFYING STUNTS OF MOTORBIKE RACERS THRILL ENGLISH FANS

Hair-raising Sport Under Floodlights at Wembley; Usually One Serious Accident a Night.

By ARTHUR STOTT
Special Representative of The Victoria Times
London (By mail).—Blinding showers of dirt, death-defying corner skids, flashes of speed on the straightaways and clever keying for the inside lanes give Englishmen some of their most thrilling sport spectacles as they turn out in thousands to watch their dirt-track riders battle in motor-cycle races at many of the large stadiums here.

Under the floodlights at Wembley speed demons from all parts of the British Isles, liberally sprinkled with imported empire talent, show their skill in the sport which usually furnishes one serious accident a night and quite frequently provides one of such gravity that fatalities ensue. To those who have not seen, six riders flashing around the curved saucer in sprints, the game has a great appeal.

All classes come to the dirt-track. Mostly the spectators are young, but there are many middle-aged and some old people with the fever of speed and risk in their bloods. They rise in a clamor as the stand lights blink out and the flood lights glare down on the motor-bike jockeys below.

The thrills occur when the riders, four to each race, drive for the ends and skid their way around, the back wheels of their machines trying to swing in front. To the casual observer it would appear the competitors could make better time by slowing down at the corners and driving around, but the crowds want the skids and they get them.

On the whole it is a bloodthirsty event that docks the bleachers. After an evening's racing in which no one is injured, they'll tell the visitor he should be present when there are a few bad spills. "Last week they had to carry four riders to the hospital."

CLEVER JOCKEYING
Clad in jockey breeches, heavy colored vests and colored helmets, the riders show skill on their machines. Time and again they appear to be bound for a collision on the corners, but clever jockeying avoids what seem to be certain crashes.

Hunched over their comparatively light bikes, with engines barking away in staccato snorts, they tear along the stretches, going into their skids about thirty feet before the turns, with their inside legs skimming over the ground for support. They flash around a flag man showing them a yellow banner before the last lap and then waving the checkered flag as the winner crosses the finish. But with all the thrills, they seldom achieve more than forty miles an hour, owing to the shortness of the straight-aways.

AMBULANCE MEN ON JOB
At the four corners of the track St. John Ambulance men wait to pick up victims of spills, while at the start uniformed assistants help the riders to get away. After each race a small engine is run around the track, dragging a harrow to smooth out the surface.

The interest created by the sport would appeal to the visitor as a certain indication of the success modern six-day bike riding would achieve here.

When you are "admitted" into the private dining-room of Simpson's, you start coming south on second row and when you have "become" a habitual diner, having passed up and down four rows of tables, you achieve a booth along the eastern wall. By that time you are expected to order at least a three-course luncheon and pay considerably more for it than at your humble eating table in the southwest. Charming little barometer of a man's rise in the world!

Hungry for the smell of printers' ink and the uneven rhythm of clattering typewriters banging out copy, I went through the plant of the modern Sons and the Cornwall Press recently. In the dull times of last year, Lord Iliffe saw sufficient light to erect a splendid new office for his trade journals at a time when new buildings were virtually off the map. Now the structure, opened a short time ago, provides a model of the ideal office building, particularly well adapted for the publication of the numerous weekly magazines the firm produces.

Unlike some of the new, garish constructions that flaunt their paint and chromium in the old streets of London, the building has a solid dignity which will be heightened with the ravages of black smoke on light stone. It is not stodgy, but suggests stability.

Inside, the offices are a triumph of modern business architecture. Ventilation, heating, lighting and kindred sciences which need the attention of the modern designer have been well cared for. Just under the roof the artists have a fine skylight system as well as northern light from windows.

Dark rooms for photography are entered from passages the windows of which are tinted yellow and curtained with black.

Directors' offices are sumptuously furnished and are done in hardwoods of particular beauty.

All branches of the trade are centralized. The editorial rooms for the various publications occupy one floor, the advertising department another.

And through a passage one enters the Cornwall press, where the visitor can see the firm's prize exhibit, a binding machine which gives magazines square backs without stitching or wiring.

Chicago Cubs In Last Ditch Stand Against New York

Open Six-game Series at

tional League Leaders

PIRATES REGAIN TIE FOR SECOND

In Double Victory Over
Brooklyn; Yankees Cut Game
From Washington's Lead

Chicago Cubs marched into the National League pennant picture to-day to start a six-game series with New York Giants that was labelled as a last-ditch affair. Starting from a second-place tie, seven and a half games behind the league-leading Giants, the Cubs were rated as about the only team that had much chance of beating out the New Yorkers.

New York's closing game at Cincinnati was wiped out by a rainstorm. The Giants now need to win only half their remaining eighteen games to clinch the pennant regardless of what the other teams do. As a tune-up for the crucial series, the Cubs hung a neat 2 to 0 trouncing on the Phillies yesterday for their twentieth victory in sixty-six home games this season.

Pittsburgh's Pirates moved back into a second-place tie by taking two shut-out decisions from Brooklyn Dodgers, 1 to 0 and 2 to 0, Boston and St. Louis Nationals had an open date.

New York Yankees again clipped a game off Washington's American League lead by downing Detroit Tigers, 5 to 3.

Cleveland and Young Monte Pearson got the better of Washington and General A. Crowder by a 3 to 1 count. St. Louis Browns trimmed out the seventh-place Boston Red Sox, 4 to 1. Chicago White Sox and Philadelphia Athletics were rained out.

Six-team Western Pro Hockey Loop

Edmonton, Sept. 13.—Six cities will probably compose the Western Canada Hockey League this winter, including Saskatoon, Calgary, Edmonton, Vancouver, Tacoma and Seattle, in the opinion of Gordon, "Duke" Keats, veteran Edmonton puck star and mentor of the professional team here.

Keats declared he had received letters from the Pacific Coast indicating a desire for hockey there this season. "Tacoma's big rink is ready at last," he said, "and they want a team. Seattle has always been a good hockey town and they are ready again this year. Vancouver is prepared to enter a club sponsored by Guy Patrick, son of Frank."

BEAVERS WILL DEFEND TITLE

Victoria Club Will Seek Second Consecutive B.C. Intermediate Hoop Crown

Frank Shandley's Beavers, last year's B.C. Intermediate A men's basketball champions, started activities in defence of their honors Monday evening when the first practice was held. This year's team will again compete in the intermediate division and the squad appears even stronger than last season.

Tubman, Goldsmith, Levy, Ritchie and Fraser are back in harness, while the new players include Harold Sheppard of last season's Fifth B.C. senior A team; Fleming and Bourne of the Fifth Intermediate squad, and one other player to be chosen from several who are trying out.

This line-up has material to even make the local senior teams step, and they should easily win the local intermediate crown.

To date it is not known what teams will be in the intermediate division, but should no entries be forthcoming the Beavers will play exhibition games with the senior division.

Last year the Beavers played in the high class and gave a good account of themselves, giving even the champion Blue Ribbons many close games.

Deferred Futures Above Pegged Mark At Winnipeg Close

Winnipeg, Sept. 13.—A pick-up in Canadian export business, coupled with strength in outside markets, lent support to wheat prices on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange to-day and closing quotations showed the deferred futures above their "pegged" levels. Values at the finish were unchanged to ½ cent higher, with October option still at the minimum price.

Traders estimated sales of Canadian wheat for shipment abroad at close to 750,000 bushels, a considerable increase from those of the last two days.

At the close October delivery was quoted at 70½, December at 71½, 72 and May, star performer of the session, at 77 to 77½ cents.

Wheat changed hands steadily all day, though volume in the pit was not particularly large.

Chicago was quite strong and helped prices here. Liverpool wheat closed firm ¼d. to ½d. higher on unfavorable reports from the Argentine, while the pick-up in export sales gave a substantial basis for a more friendly feeling in the market.

There was a keen demand for all grades of cash wheat, including durum. This inquiry was quite strong all morning and appeared to emanate from export buyers. Flax skyrocketed from export gains of five cents at one time. Speculative interest was credited with quite heavy buying in this commodity and rye also rose for substantial gains.

Don't Despair If You Are an Ugly Duckling in a World Where Beauty Gets the Breaks. Dress Yourself Up, Cultivate Tact, Humor and Intelligence and You Will Win Out

THERE is no bitterer despair than fills the heart of a girl when she realizes that she is an ugly duckling instead of the white swan she would like to be. So might a general feel when he reviewed his few ragged troops and battered cannon on the eve of battle and knew the fight lost before it began. So might a prisoner feel looking through his bars at the gay world from which he was shut out.

Usually the girl, seeing herself so double-crossed by her fairy godmother, just succumbs without a struggle and lets Nature take its course. She gets a dejected what-the-use attitude toward herself and wears sloppy clothes, and doesn't even try to improve her appearance. It is the beauties who spend hours before the mirrors and who rearrange the shops and things that will flatter them and bring out their best points. Even the way a woman combs her hair is in exact ratio to her vanity.

Now I would like to say a few words of comfort to those girls who were not around when good looks were passed out and who failed to get a square deal when naturally wavy hair and peaches-and-cream complexions and classic profiles were distributed.

First, I would bid them to get rid of their inferiority complex and cultivate a spirit of optimism. For, in the first place, nothing plain attracts attention as the real thing. Charm and intelligence and vivacity and tact are better things to conjure with than a cupid's bow mouth and a pack-of-bones figure.

Of course, it helps to be easy on the eyes, but any girl can attain a synthetic prettiness by wearing pretty gowns. We don't analyze beauty. We merely accept the pleasing results. Men, in especial, never differentiate between a woman and her frock, and often as not when they think they are admiring a living picture it is only the frame that has caught their fancies.

But while the pretty girl can wear anything that happens to be the fashion, the homely girl must watch her step and get just the colors and lines that bring out her best points and camouflage her worst ones. She can never turn her defects into virtues by dressing her type. She should never copy-cat the pretty girl, but dress as differently from her as possible, and thus she will acquire a style and individuality of her own.

As for her figure, she can acquire slimmness or curves, as she wishes, by counting her calories, while as for her complexion, she can thank her merciful Providence that she lives in a day when all complexions come from the drug store, and all that any maiden requires is skill in putting on her make-up.

But the most important thing for the homely girl to realize is that inasmuch as she is short on good looks, she must be long on other qualities. She must have a good line, for one thing. She must be so intelligent and entertaining and amusing that she will divert a man's thoughts from her face to her conversation. It is only the beautiful who can afford to be dumb.

A man who was almost grotesquely hideous, but who was noted for his conquests among women, used to boast that he could win out against the handsomest man in the world if he was given ten minutes' start. And the same thing is true of women. Men will forsake the dull, stupid beauty who is a conversational dud for the bright, witty, vivacious, homely woman who is alive and up-to-date and keeps them on their tiptoes.

Then the ugly duckling must acquire an inexhaustible bag of parlor tricks. Every mother who has a plain-faced little Jane should begin educating her feet by the time she can walk if she wants to save her from being a wallflower when she is grown up. No girl who dances like a bit of thistle-down ever lacks for partners and cut-ins. Nor does a girl have to be Miss America to be eagerly sought for as a partner if she plays a superlative game of contract, or if she is a crackerjack on the tennis court or on the golf links. Any girl who can do things that outdistance the girl who is merely something to be looked at. This is a time of action in which the still life gets passed over.

Then the homely girl must make of herself a diplomat. She must learn to handle every one with velvet gloves. She must endure fools gladly and lend her ears to bores. She must turn the spotlight on others and keep herself discreetly in the background. She must ask Mr. Jones to regale the company with his pet story instead of telling her own. She must tell Mr. Smith how great and wonderful he is instead of expecting him to turn in on her before her. And when a woman can do these things it doesn't make one particle of difference whether she is ugly enough to stop the clock or pretty enough to win a bathing-beauty contest.

And, finally, the homely woman has as her consolation the fact that time is her friend and she will be better-looking at forty than she is at twenty. Nor will she ever have to listen to anyone telling her how she has faded, and that should reconcile her to not having been a beauty in her youth.

RUBENS
In the early spring of the year 1603, a young man left northern Italy, bound for Madrid, Spain. If you had been there and had asked someone about this young man, the reply might have been like this:

While in Madrid, Rubens painted portraits of several Spanish nobles. Then he returned to Italy. News of his mother's serious illness caused him to journey to Antwerp. He reached his mother die before he reached her bedside, but he decided to remain in Antwerp.

During the thirty-two years which followed before his death, he made Antwerp his headquarters, but from time to time he visited foreign countries. He took part in signing a peace treaty in London, and while there painted the picture called "Peace and War" which Enghelmen of the present time are proud to have in their National Gallery. He went to Paris and helped decorate a palace for the French queen.

One of the famous pictures by Rubens is the "Descent from the Cross." All told, he took part in the making of more than 3,000 pictures, but many of them were painted in large measure by the pupils who gathered around him in Antwerp. One of the pupils was the famous Anthony Van Dyck. (For Biography section of your scrap-book.)
To-morrow—Rembrandt.

Capt. A. W. Pearce in Port Abord Ss. Monowai After Visit to England

Says Affairs Improving in England; Australia Has Five Pests, He Says

With knitting mills plying on full time and automobile factories flooded with orders, England is the picture of well-ordered prosperity, declared Capt. A. W. Pearce, F.R.G.S., publisher of The Pastoral Review, leading agricultural paper of Australia and representative for that dominion and New Zealand of The Port of London Authority, who is a visitor to Victoria this afternoon aboard the Ss. Monowai, returning to his home in Sydney.

"It all reminds me of old Merrie England," stated Capt. Pearce, who sailed out of London to Melbourne on his first clipper ship, in 1875. "At Bradford the knitting mills were working overtime, and at Coventry the automobile factories were flooded with orders. One auto manufacturer had thousands of orders for left-hand drive cars, for the American continent, but was too busy to handle them."

SEEING CANADA

Capt. Pearce arrived in Montreal two months ago from England and has been seeing a great deal of Canada on tour. During his visit to Vancouver he was taken on a tour of the harbor there by members of the Harbor Commission. He was much impressed with Canada's great Pacific port and said his future would be great.

Turning to affairs in Australia, Capt. Pearce said: "Australia's five principal pests are politicians, civil servants, the blow-fly, rabbits and the prickly pear. In that order, but despite all of them economic conditions in the southern dominions are improving slowly but steadily."

Capt. Pearce, who is a Freeman of the City of London, and a member of the Master Mariner's Society of London, went to sea on the Great Bear Lake in that order, but despite all of them economic conditions in the southern dominions are improving slowly but steadily.

British Naval Officers, Who Arrived From China By Tai-Mo-Shan, See Victoria

Report Narrow Escape From Collision in Dense Fog in Straits Near Here

The stretch up the Strait of Juan de Fuca from Cape Flattery to Victoria gave the British naval officers aboard the ketch-rigged yacht Tai-Mo-Shan more worry than the entire 6,000 mile voyage across the Pacific from Hongkong. It was stated by one of the party aboard the boat in the inner harbor this morning. In the dense fog of early yesterday morning a big liner, outbound to sea nearly ran down the ketch.

Yesterday afternoon the members of the party left the Tai-Mo-Shan in the harbor and went to the Empress Hotel where they enjoyed their first bath in many days. They also had a shoreside meal, which they said was a great change, and a treat from the food they had taken on the voyage across. The diet of the five on the long voyage, was mostly canned beans, with an occasional stew. They hoped to do some fishing and harpooning, but this scheme fell through when their lines snapped. The Tai-Mo-Shan carries food for 100 days, an exceptional amount for a craft of her size. When she arrived here she still had plenty of canned goods in the larder.

DRAWS TOOTH

Surgeon-Lieutenant C. O'many-Davis this morning extracted a tooth from one member of the party. He was educated at Edinburgh University. Lieut. R. E. D. Ryder is a Cheltenham man, and Lieut. G. S. Salt, Lieut.-Commander M. B. Sherwood and Lieut. P. Francis are all from Dartmouth. They have been serving on British warships in the China station for three years, and decided it would be novel and unusual to travel home to England in their own yacht, over a route more than half the distance around the world.

The Tai-Mo-Shan is one of the trimmest deep-sea sailing yachts to ever visit Victoria. She was built especially for the voyage to the Hongkong and Whampoa Dock Company at Kowloon, and unusual to travel home to England in their own yacht, over a route more than half the distance around the world.

Orient Ships En Route Here

There are seventy-eight passengers aboard the inbound N.Y.K. motor ship Hikawa Maru, due at the William Head quarantine station Sunday at midnight, bound for Vancouver and Seattle, according to word received in Victoria this morning by Harry Clark, local representative of the company.

Of these travelers there are two first class, eight tourist cabin and twenty-four tourist class will proceed to Seattle.

Cargo for Vancouver amounts to 920 tons, including a large parcel of Canadian line.

The Blue Funnel motor ship Tantalus is now crossing the North Pacific from ports in China and Japan and is expected here Sunday night or first thing Monday morning. She has a large number of Chinese stowaways, passengers for Victoria and light cargo. She will take a large parcel of raw silk to Seattle.

The Ss. Ision, which was here last week for Vancouver Island lumber, will leave Vancouver Sunday for the Orient.

GUIDES MEET AT CHEMAINUS

Cheminus, Sept. 13.—The first fall meeting of the First Chemainus Guide Association was held Monday afternoon at the home of the president, Mrs. Russell Robinson. Others present were Mrs. Douglas Ross, Mrs. James Cook, Mrs. Halhed, Mrs. Fraser, Mrs. Hector Finlayson, Mrs. Jack Underwood, Miss Ethel Greig, Miss Enid Fraser and Miss Ivy Yee.

It was decided the guides and brown-owls should resume meeting next week. Some needed equipment will be purchased.

Cheminus Women's Benefit Association No. 19 held their regular meeting in the Knights of Pythias Hall, Mrs. MacKay was in the chair and twenty members attended. A sandwich set was presented to Mrs. A. Murray for her splendid work with the amusement committee. It was decided to hold a card party and old-time dance in the picture house on Thursday, and the annual sale on November 9. An invitation was received and accepted to visit the St. Cecilia Review, Nanaimo, in October.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Gill, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. John Cathcart, have returned from a trip to Seattle and Vancouver, where they visited relatives.

Miss Joyce Finlayson is a pupil at Queen Margaret's School, Duncan. Miss Irene Fraser is attending Duncan High School.

Miss Peggy Tombee and Bert Reid are attending High School in Vancouver, where they will live with relatives.

ABLE TO HANDLE LIFEBOAT

This group of lady members of the crew of the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Japan is ready for any emergency at sea. During the liner's last visit to Vancouver they became the first women's fully qualified lifeboat crew on the Pacific Ocean, and obtained their Board of Trade certificates. They lowered the big lifeboat, rowed off a few hundred yards from the ship's side, sailed back and satisfactorily answered a round of brisk questions, put to them by Capt. A. H. Lindsay, Lloyd's inspector.
